Power of Pulpit Only Influence

By TERRY HAMMOND

Highways Minister Gagliardi told the legislative roads probe yesterday his only influence on a contractor who donated free labor to his Kamloops church was the power of the pulpit.

He said he is sure it was his Sunday appeals for help in building a Calvary Temple auditorium that prompted a Trans-Canada Highway contractor to pay the wages of two men who worked for the church for about six months.

BACKED MEN

During a full day in the witness box the minister categorically denied the allegations of Montana contractor Dick Holzworth and said he fully concurred in decisions made by his men in relation to controversial Project 819—a 12.8-mile section of highway near Revelstoke.

His testimony brought to an end the parade of witnesses which has appeared before the legislative public accounts committee since it commenced its investigation on March 4. Today members of the 13-member committee will hear a summation of evidence from Vancouver lawyer Angelo Branca, counsel for Mr. Gagliardi and the highways department, and possibly a further summation by committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

After that looms the task of preparing a final report for the minister.

LAST PUBLIC ACT

Mr. Branca's summation will likely be the last public act of the committee until the report is released.

It will mark the end of an investigation involving more than 80 public sitings, 160 hours of testimony mixed with bitter inter-party wrangling, and a transcript running to 35 volumes and nearly 500,000 words.

The investigation was the government's answer to the Holzworth allegations tabled in the House Feb. 28 in affidavit form by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby.)

TEMPERS FLARED

As they have done many times since the hearing began, tempers flared on several occasions yesterday but never more hotly than when Mr. Dowding shouted across the chamber that Mr. Gagliardi was "a liar."

He hurled the epithet when the minister testified that the Burnaby member, a lawyer, had told him in a legislative corridor that he was acting for Mr. Holzworth.

UNPARLIAMENTARY

Mr. Gagliardi demanded a retraction and Mr. Branca said the remark was unparliamentary. Waldo Stelling (SC—Victoria) said Mr. Dowding, who is not a member of the committee, should be cited for contempt.

Mr. Dowding said he retracted the accusation, but insisted he had never discussed the matter with the minister. Chairman Irvine Corbett (SC—Yale) took no action on Mr. Stelling's statement.

Mr. Gagliardi's account of work on Calvary Temple and his role in the church stemmed from earlier testimony that Bonanza Construction had mailed cheques covering the wages of two men to the minister's home in Kamloops.

FROM TIME SHEETS

A former Bonanza employee testified the cheques were made up from time sheets submitted by Anthony Gagliardi, the minister's brother, who stayed in the minister's home. He said he never saw either of the men on Project 819—the job for which Bonanza handled the payroll.

Mr. Gagliardi told the probe yesterday that Calvary Temple decided in 1958 to build an auditorium and, as it had done in the past, employed his brother as "boom carpenter" because his brother was a building contractor who could cover the crew with workmen's compensation.

Glassco No. 4: Forces' Overlapping Hit 'Put Civilians on Job'

GET TOGETHER!

Sweeping Defence Overhaul

OTTAWA (CP)—The Glassco royal commission on government organization today recommended sweeping changes in administration of the defence department.

It did not go so far, however, as to recommend a single, one-uniform service.

NOT FAR ENOUGH?

The recommendations may not go far enough for a new Liberal government. Liberal Leader Pearson on Jan. 12 urged that "the three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated for maximum efficiency and economy."

The commission, in the fourth volume of its report on government services, said it is uneconomic for the armed forces to maintain separate organizations for accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation and general administration. Such common functions should be integrated.

HALF-STRENGTH

It said that about 60,000 physically fit military personnel, nearly half the strength of the armed forces, are engaged in support or non-combat activities.

Some $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing 16,000 civilians in jobs now performed by uniformed personnel.

NETWORKS 'WASTEFUL'

The commission noted an unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to develop an integrated teletype relay system under tri-service direction. The result had been development of "three wasteful and increasingly inadequate networks."

It blamed such occurrences on lack of executive authority by the chiefs of staff committee. The committee system—there are more than 200 standing tri-service committees—permitted "procrastination."

MUST BE UNANIMOUS

The commission said recommendations and decisions of the chiefs of staff committee must be unanimous and that in case of disagreement the chairman reports the conflicting views to the defence minister.

The commission recommended that the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee (now Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller), exercise "ministerial power of direction" over the armed forces within limits defined in executive session.

In Volume Four

Other steps advanced in the fourth volume of the Glassco royal commission report:

● CBC: Extensive management reorganization for efficiency and economy in operations; greater decentralization; a definite pattern of financing; policy direction from the government.

● Northern Affairs: Strengthening of the department to end costly duplication or overlapping; removal of Indian affairs branch of citizenship department to have northern affairs in control of both Indian and Eskimo programs; wider powers for local administrators.

● External Affairs: Permanent appointments should have command of both English and French languages; more effective control over issuing of passports; hiring of more women as career officers; splitting of diplomatic and administrative duties in external affairs.

In Few Months

Liberals Facing Report Decision

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the decisions a new Liberal cabinet will face in the next few months is what to do about the 1,000,000-word report by the Glassco royal commission on government organization, set up 2½ years ago to find ways to eliminate waste and economize on federal operations.

During the last Parliament and in his election campaign Liberal Leader Pearson gave no indication of how he and top Liberals looked upon the main Glassco proposals—some of them involving drastic shake-ups in the federal machine.

WITHIN MONTH

The fourth volume of the commission's report was issued today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office. The final volume is expected within a month.

Last November Mr. Diefenbaker said his government was prepared to adopt most of the Glassco suggestions and said Trade Minister McEachern would direct the job.

TO HELP WORK

George Davidson, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration was shifted to Senator McEachern's office to help with the work and a staff of senior civil servants was reorganized to set up the organization.

Some of the ideas for streamlining civil service job-training, reducing the red tape in financial management and simplifying paperwork procedures have already been put into practice.

But Mr. Diefenbaker said no cabinet decision had been made on the royal commission's revolutionary proposals for watering down the central control of the Civil Service Commission and the treasury board, now the watchdogs of the entire civil service.

The first volume of the Glassco report, out last September, said the Civil Service Commission's role as a central hiring agency ought to be reduced to let the various departments and agencies do their own hiring in the same manner as private corporations.

STAFF CRITICAL. Civil service staff organizations have been critical of this idea.

The same volume said the treasury board now wastes too much time and money on detailed scrutiny of spending. It ought to be limited to approving long-term spending programs, allowing department chiefs more freedom in individual items.

TWO CENTRAL GROUPS. Volume No. 2 urged creation of two new central organizations to handle all federal purchasing and property management, another radical departure from present practice.

Major item in the third volume was a plan to have the government withdraw from the operation of veterans' hospitals, now a $50,000,000 annual outlay, and gradually shift veterans into community hospitals.

STORM OF PROTEST. This aroused a storm of protest and a comment from Mr. Diefenbaker that the proposal would not be accepted.

Garibaldi Combed For Trio

VANCOUVER (CP)—A large ski-equipped search party combed the rugged, snow-covered wastes of Garibaldi Park Tuesday for three men missing since Friday.

The search started after a group of mountaineers told police that Lloyd Williams, 26, of nearby Richmond; Don Hoover and Helmut Rostek, both 22, of Vancouver, failed to meet them at Garibaldi Lake as planned.

The three, described as experienced and well equipped, had left Diamond Head chalet, 12 miles south of the lake, Friday morning.

SEARCH HAMPERED

The search was being hampered by overcast weather and deep, wet snow. Garibaldi Park is about 50 miles north of here.

The searchers are camping in the park in their progress across the glaciers north of the chalet.

Five members of the Seattle mountaineering organization at the chalet during Easter weekend, stayed on in the search.

Thresher Escort Skipper Cited for Messages Delay

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—A navy court has cited the skipper of a submarine escort vessel for apparent failure to advise higher authorities of the final messages from the submarine USS Thresher, lost with 129 men.

The court named—but did not charge—Lt.-Cmdr. Stanley W. Hecker, 36, of Brooklyn, N.Y., skipper of the Skylark which was accompanying the Thresher when she made her fatal test dive last Wednesday.

SUBJECT TO INQUIRY

Vice-Admiral Bernard L. Anshutz, president of the court of inquiry, recalled Hecker to the stand Tuesday and advised him:

"The court has concluded that your conduct as commanding officer of the USS Skylark, as revealed by evidence presented to the court, appears to be subject to inquiry."

"The evidence in question reflects that you failed to inform higher authority of all the information available to you pertinent to the circumstances attending the last transmissions received by Skylark from the Thresher on April 10, 1963, as it was your duty to do, for an unreasonable length of time."

"The court wishes to emphasize that this apparent failure on your part cannot conceivably have contributed in any way to the loss of the USS Thresher and those on board."

"You are accordingly discharged."

INFORMED OF MIST

Capt. Saul Katz, counsel for the court, informed Hecker that he has the right to obtain counsel, examine records of all evidence thus far, cross examine witnesses and can present a closing argument at the conclusion of the inquiry. He also said Hecker could challenge members of the court.

The court resumed to give Hecker time to get legal counsel. Earlier, two admirals said they have a theory on what caused the loss of the Thresher but declined to make it public.

SECRET DATA?

Rear Admiral Lawson P. Ramage, deputy commander of the Atlantic fleet submarine force, testified before a court of inquiry Tuesday that his opinion is "not one I'd care to state in open session."

The naval inquiry court indicated Ramage's theory involved secret or confidential information and might be taken later in executive session.

Thompson Insists

Disagreement—But No Split

RED DEER (CP)—Social Credit leaders in western Canada, including national leader Robert Thompson, met behind closed doors here Tuesday night to discuss party strategy.

One of the topics at the meeting, coinciding with a gathering of eastern party supporters in Ottawa, was possible action against the six Social Credit members of Parliament who last week pledged support for a Liberal government.

Prior to the meeting here, Mr. Thompson said that the action by the six party members "demanded immediate action, coming as it did before the result of the armed services vote was announced."

NO ANNOUNCEMENTS

He indicated there would be no announcements out of either the meeting here or the meeting in Ottawa before Wednesday morning.

He said neither meeting could be termed a party caucus and that the Red Deer gathering was a strategy session to discuss party policy.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Thompson conferred for 2½ hours in the morning discussions.

Meanwhile, Back East...

OTTAWA (CP)—The Quebec wing of the Social Credit party met for more than five hours without a break Tuesday to thrash out differences over the party's position in the next Parliament.

The marathon caucus resumed Tuesday night after a supper break and was to continue this morning. Gilles Gauthier, member for Lapointe, said he will issue a written statement as the outcome of the discussions about noon today.

A party official said caucusmen are a good place to wash dirty linen. There was no sense in doing it in public, he added. He did not elaborate.

Bert Lebo, member for Carleton Place, said the only Western Social Credit MP at the caucus, blamed Liberal agents for a statement pledging support for the incoming Liberal government signed by six Social Credit MPs from Quebec.

Following the meeting with Mr. Manning the Social Credit leader said the fact that western leaders were meeting in Red Deer while eastern supporters gathered in Ottawa did not mean there was a split in the party.

It was simply a matter of economics, he explained. "It's costly to have an executive meeting in Ottawa."

NO DIVISION

Mr. Thompson then admitted that there may be differences of opinion among party members. "There may be some disagreement within the party but no division," he told reporters.

He said there was another factor in his decision not to attend the Ottawa meeting.

"I didn't want to conduct the investigation," he said, referring to the action of the six Quebec members whose names appeared on a statement announcing support of a Liberal government. He said it was purely a local affair.

fining by the minister and be given control and administration of functions common to at least two of the services.

CHIEF OF STAFF

As a consequence, the commission said, the chairman should be designated "chief of Canadian defence staffs."

The commission also recommended that the deputy defence minister (now Elgin Armstrong) be given greater responsibility in reviewing the organization and administrative methods of the services.

CIVILIAN STAFF URGED

There was a need for a strong civilian staff group under the deputy minister to advise the minister.

Other recommendations:

- Consideration of the "costly" compulsory retirement policy of the services—at age 55 for the most senior officers—and the possibility of creating employment opportunities in the public sector for military personnel retired at early ages.
- A comprehensive and independent review of the military and civilian manpower needs of the armed forces.
- Improved career opportunities for civilian technical and administrative personnel employed in the armed forces. About 50,000 civilians work for the defence department.
- Greater interchange of service and civilian officers, especially of senior and intermediate rank between the headquarters staffs of the armed forces and the deputy minister.

What is the rationale for the decision that the staff of the Army could draw on its own resources only and had no access to the "large reserve" of communications personnel in the navy and RCAF.

INTEGRATION URGED

"Regardless of whether or not a case can be made for unification," the commission said, "there are strong reasons for seeking a greater integration of those functions common to the three services."

On manpower, the commission put these questions:

Gaglardi Denies Charges

His brother was to do all the hiring, he said, and the donor-sponsors of labor would act through him with the actual donations covering wages going to the temple.

This procedure was not followed with the two men in question, the minister testified, because Bonarini had his own workmen's compensation coverage.

ASKED FOR HELP

He said he appeared for help on the project each Sunday. Members of the congregation were asked to either work on the building themselves or sponsor others who would work in their place.

Asked by Randolph Harding (NDP—Kootenai-Slocan) if he had been instrumental in any way in having the two men put on the church job by the construction company, he replied, "Directly no, but indirectly I would say yes."

Outlining again the appeals he made for assistance, he added, "I am sure this had something to do with this action being taken."

CHECKED MATTER

He said his first knowledge of the Bonarini contribution came in 1959 from the press and that he had then checked the matter with his brother and learned the facts.

He denied that the contractor got any patronage as a result of the contribution and he denied that the contractor, as charged by Holzworth, had at any time paid $350 a month to an organization in his church.

His organization don't receive pay for their work, he said.

He told the committee that officially he is not even the pastor of Calvary Temple although he continues to fulfill the pastore's functions.

He said he resigned four years ago because of constant "bickering" over his church.

"I have not received even a penny-piece in the last 10½ years for my work in Calvary Temple—nor has my wife."

CONSTANTLY DENIED

Asked about Holzworth's allegation that Burton Lymburner was employed by Union Contractors Ltd., to "keep the door ground" to Mr. Gaglardi, the minister said it had been constantly denied in subsequent testimony.

In fact, he added, Lymburner (a key man in companies associated with Project 819 who has failed to return to Canada from the U.S. to testify) was a less frequent visitor to his office than many other contractors.

MORE DENIALS

Mr. Gaglardi denied that he had ever asked Union Contractors official Clyde W. Thornton to retire a mortgage against former highways department employee Vincent L. Gresty, and that when he asked Gresty if he was involved with a Project 819 subcontractor he got a negative reply.

He had never assured Thornton he would be "well taken care of" as a result of anything he did.

POLICY CHANGES

As a result of Project 819, he testified, his department had made certain policy changes in the handling of bids after they have been received.

His department did not deviate from fixed policy in letting Project 819 to the low bidder on the strength of a bid bond which subsequently was found to be faulty, but simply exercised discretionary powers.

Mr. Gaglardi testified that he was away at the time the bids were opened, and on his return he accepted the recommendations of his officials.

COMPTROLLER'S JOB

"I don't deal with the bonds at all, my comptroller does that."

"There's no use of me keeping first-class men and doing the job myself."

"I looked upon this exactly the way it was put to me by my deputy."

The decision to allow the company a period of grace in which to furnish a valid bond was made by the then deputy minister, he said, "and I concurred."

Replying to James Rhodes (NDP—Delta) he denied that any contractor ever sponsored his religious broadcasts.

He testified that the Holzworth allegations of $135,000 paid to the Project 819 prime contractors for work that was never done had been dealt with in the testimony of departmental officials.

The minister said he had nothing to do with the actions leading up to payments.

He had never promised a "get well project" to people who lost money on Project 819 and had never suggested to them how much they should bid on a subsequent contract.

Before Mr. Gaglardi took the stand yesterday Mr. Braun told the committee the minister was willing to testify but had no new testimony to add to that of departmental officials.

He said Holzworth's affidavit contained "irresponsible" allegations by an "irresponsible man."

Patience, Cleverness Needed In Dealing with Old People

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My 96-year-old mother, blind and partially deaf, is living with my husband and me and our 17-year-old daughter. My patience is running out with her, as she plays the radio loud, and I mean LOUD.

If I turn it down, she turns it up. I am on 24-hour duty because she sleeps only about three hours and rambles on and off the rest of the time. She refuses to stay upstairs for breakfast. She is in the living room in an easy chair from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and only leaves to go upstairs to the bathroom, or for nothing, every hour. My daughter likes to have friends after school or in the evenings, and we have only a small house.

—MRS. H.C.

Old people, poor things, can be difficult. We must be patient, and also clever in dealing with them.

Your mother's world has shrunk to the size of your house. She can't see and can't hear very well. It's natural for her to prattle as much as her old limbs will permit.

Let her prattle within limits of the rights of the rest of you. Your daughter is entitled to entertain her friends. Grandma will have to be told so. And you, obviously, would like her to stay upstairs more in the morning when you're trying to get housework done. She'll have to be told that.

But on the other hand, perhaps some benefits can be arranged. Can you put an easy chair upstairs, so she won't miss having a soft place for her weary bones? And a radio there, too?

As to the loud radio, it isn't prohibitive in cost to get a set equipped with headphones. Your mother can then turn up the volume to suit her diminished hearing without blasting the rest of you out of the house.

Make a compromise on the breakfast issue. It wouldn't be surprising if she insists on coming downstairs for breakfast just for the companionship of eating with the rest of you. If she then would agree to go back upstairs for the rest of the morning—and listen to a radio there as loud as she chooses—it would give you some time to get things done.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the meaning of the word syndrome?—MRS. P. L.

Syndrome comes from Greek roots meaning "to run together," hence a group of symptoms which, together, identify a certain condition.

There are many kinds of syndromes—"Stokes-Adams syndrome," "shoulder-hand syndrome," and scores of others in which the name (often that of a physician who first described it) may give no clue at all to its meaning.

Dear Dr. Molner: What should a woman do to prevent aging, when her face is her beauty?—MRS. A. N.

Plenty of sleep, proper diet, a clear conscience and moderate, regular exercise are the only things I know to minimize the wrinkles of getting older. Aside from that, plastic surgery (or "face-lifting") has been very useful to women who, in good and vigorous health, sometimes have had to do a little fiddling about their real age to keep a job.

Boy Admits Fatal Fire Setting

PORTLAND, Ind. (AP)—A four-year-old boy has admitted starting a house fire which killed a young invalid woman.

The youngster admitted pouring kerosene on a kitchen table and in front of the chair in which the woman sat watching, paralyzed, then lighting a match into the liquid.

The body of the woman, Mary Jane Scott, 21, was found in a living room chair after the blaze swept her family's home last Thursday night. Her widowed mother was visiting neighbors at the time.

Assassination Plot In Haiti Thwarted

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—The government announced Tuesday the smothering of an alleged plot aimed at assassinating strongman Francois Duvalier.

The plotters, described as a "small group" of army officers, planned to shoot the president as he rode in his birthday parade yesterday, government officials said.

They said at least two army officers have been arrested. Three others were known to have taken asylum in the Brazilian embassy—a colonel, a colonel and a captain.

The arrests were apparently made Monday. Duvalier capped his birthday with a reception for the diplomatic corps this evening. There were no anti-government incidents reported during the day.

Spies for Peace Rock U.K.

Baring Secrets May Stop Bomb-Banners

LONDON (CP)—The three-day running battle between anarchistic ban-the-bombers and civil authority during the normally passive Aldermaston march is likely to have serious repercussions.

The government, faced with a blatant breach of Official Secrets Act, is intent on tracing the leak of information contained in a widely-distributed pamphlet naming the sites of regional government survival shelters.

In fact, Prime Minister Macmillan took a personal hand Tuesday in the search for the so-called Spies for Peace—the extremists who made public the civil defence secrets.

Angered by the breach in security, the prime minister cut his Easter holiday short and hurried back to London from his country home in Sussex. He met with Home Secretary Henry Brooke to discuss the problem, bound to events a storm in Parliament.

Meanwhile, police, many disguised as beatniks complete with black jeans, beards and musical instruments, pressed a search for three responsible for preparing and distributing the pamphlet, persons Brooke has called "traitors."

More fundamental is the effect the pamphlet and the ensuing skirmishes with police is likely to have on public opinion and the whole campaign for nuclear disarmament.

MAY KILL MOVEMENT

When this year's Aldermaston march began Friday it was generally believed the anti-nuclear movement in Britain, devoid of many of its founding lights, was fading into a mildly muted, protest movement. Many thought the march an empty Easter ritual drained of much of its original sincerity of conscience.

Today, thanks to the efforts of a militant minority, the CND movement finds itself resurrected in a blaze of publicity. Some observers say the heat may be strong enough to kill it for good.

John Connell, writing in The Evening Standard, says the Committee of 100 has "introduced into British politics a reckless element of mass lawlessness and violence."

The element responsible for the pamphlet appears to be a fragment of a fragment within the movement—a section of the Committee of 100 who want to stand up and fight rather than sit down and silently disobey.

CND leaders, under Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral, have dissociated themselves from this group. But the problem is they seem unable to control the company they keep.

The movement is a mosaic of multi-colored political principles and emotional idealism. In what The Telegraph calls a boring "torrent of words and banners," Mayfair blackbirds march side by side with Communists from Coventry.

Polaris Pact Unaltered By Unpublished Facts

LONDON (Reuters)—Government officials said Tuesday there was some unpublished material in the agreement between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan under which Britain will get Polaris missiles.

They said the unpublished minutes did not affect the rights or obligations contained in the published agreement and envisaged by the communiqué issued by Kennedy and Macmillan from their Bahamas talks.

Neither did they effect in any way the financial or political aspects of the agreement.

The officials said there is nothing sensational in the unpublished minutes.

Forgotten Families

TO THE OUTSIDE world, even in these days of comparative enlightenment, the white man in Africa is always suspect. He is usually visualized as a brutal tyrant whose hobbies are equally divided between beating his African slaves with a sjambok and drinking pink gin as the sun goes down, while the rest of his time is spent amassing a huge fortune through the shameless exploitation of the long-suffering native population.

As grotesque as this depiction is, it has gained considerable credence throughout the Western world mainly due to its propagation by a multitude of unformed do-gooders who see any form of colonialism as nothing less than the acme of wickedness. In this they are ably abetted by increasing numbers of extremist African nationalists and an unremitting stream of vicious propaganda emanating from the Iron Curtain countries who seek for themselves the removal of British influence from Africa.

Thus today thousands of white British families in Kenya, Nyasaland, Northern Rhodesia and Southern Rhodesia have been, or are about to become, trapped in an impossible situation in which they find themselves aliens in the country of their birth.

It is sad to recall now that many of these families have lived in Africa for 70 years or more and know no other home. It is also worthy of note that the majority of them went to Africa as settlers at the behest of the British government.

But the bitterest thought of all for those involved is that Britain even now is preparing to withdraw from these former colonies and protectorates apparently content to let the settlers fend for themselves as best they might in an atmosphere of hostility and ill-disguised savagery.

Surely, in all fairness, the British government which was responsible in the first instance for white families settling in Africa cannot now turn its back on them.

True, Britain has been under great pressure from many African and Asian countries, as well as the United States government, to get out of her colonies—and this she has been doing with laudable rapidity. But her responsibilities must go further. She owes a moral debt, if nothing else, to the 300,000 or more British subjects left behind in those territories—a debt which she must discharge just as meticulously as she has met her obligation toward the African natives.

Faced with similar circumstances a few years ago the Netherlands government offered free passage and a haven to all its subjects who were turned out of Indonesia after nearly 300 years of Dutch rule. Britain cannot do less—for if the pattern runs true to form the British settlers in Africa will be stripped of their land and possessions as soon as the authority of the British government has been removed.

Undoubtedly this would be a heavy load for Britain to bear on her own. It would therefore perhaps not be untoward to suggest that the Commonwealth nations of Canada, Australia and New Zealand help her with the burden by offering sanctuary to those who are in need of it.

Purpose Defeated

BAN-THE-BOMB marches and demonstrations of similar sort have received the approval of Dr. Brock Chisholm as effective methods of calling attention to problems requiring changes. They prove, he said in an Edmonton interview, that many people are willing to allow themselves to become spectacles to draw notice to situations they feel too dangerous to be ignored.

One must question if this is a realistic appraisal. Has the seventh annual Aldermaston-to-London anti-nuclear march, for example, promoted the cause of its organizers, or on the contrary tinged their purpose as well as themselves in the public mind with disrepute and derision?

Such demonstrations obviously embrace a sincere core of seekers of peace, willing as Dr. Chisholm says to make a personal sacrifice for laudable principles. But just as plainly, they seem inevitably to be attended by a larger number of participants not merely willing to make spectacles of themselves, but anxious to do so for a variety of reasons not connected with the main theme—exhibitionists of all sorts craving excitement and personal attention.

No surprise then that the Aldermaston march ranged in effect from carnival to grim, or that it was described as "a curious band of beatniks, dedicated clerics, enraged intellectuals and professional agitators," and "a parade of the unwashed and unshaven."

The march, ending in violence, can hardly be said to have drawn new attention to a problem that is constantly in the minds of most civilized peoples, nor is it likely to have won converts to the ban-the-bomb movement. Rather it invited antipathy and ridicule, and so, by all appearances, completely defeated its organizers' purpose.

Subordinate Status

MORE THAN 1,000 would-be MPs competed for a fourth that number of available federal seats, so it was a foregone conclusion that most of them would be also rans. Election statistics showing the number of candidates losing their deposits rather rub the failure home.

Nearly half of all candidates, some 48 per cent, fell into this category when they polled less than half the votes cast for the winners in each constituency. Presumably the forfeits would be paid in many instances from party funds but no doubt some at least of the losers are personally $200 the poorer.

On the face of it some candidates had no chance at all and were merely carrying the party banner for appearance sake. Others were engaged at best in a forlorn hope. But no doubt all thought their entry into the lists worthwhile.

Not surprisingly the NDP and the Socreds were the worst sufferers. They were at the bottom of the polls nationally and thus could be expected to feel the greater impact of deposit losses.

But the extent of these, 52 and 72 per cent respectively, indicates their pre-election claims of large parliamentary representation to have been vain and unrealistic.

In relation to seats won across the country these figures emphasize that although national in scope both these parties are very much in the minority. Each captured seats in only three out of the ten provinces. The ratio of forfeitures simply reflects their subordinate political status.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sailing seas..."

By TOM TAYLOR

FOR some moviegoers a three-hour showing might make "The Longest Day" seem like the longest night, but this is a notable film nevertheless.

People who laugh at the wrong places, too, had perhaps better stay away. It is not a comic film.

When one unfortunate paratrooper drops to his death in the dark down a farmyard well, for instance, this isn't meant to be a humorous interlude. It is a deadly serious recreation. Undoubtedly something of the sort happened to many men at the Normandy invasion.

The point here is that the mood and purpose of D-Day must inhabit the moviegoer when watching this film else its spirit and content will be lost.

And, if only to let one see what men had to overcome when storming ashore on that eventful morning, this is a motion picture that commands respectful attention.

Veterans of the beaches no doubt can fault the film in a dozen details but the overall assembly of the invading force is in mastery and the camera work is magnificent. Actual war itself can't be duplicated except by repetition but the marshalling and organization of these colossal battle scenes is as near reality as one could wish.

In this respect the direction was superb.

Even the numerous well-known Hollywood stars taking part, precisely a roll-call of big-name movie and television actors, fitted for the most part neatly into the setting. It was not as if they were there to shine, as actors they did not obtrude unduly to spoil the illusion.

Excepting, for this writer, Peter Lawford simulating the Commando leader Lord Lovat. If the latter ever saw the film he'll cringe. Lawford never seems to belong, and gives the impression of being on a plateau or some other equally amusing joint.

For Canadian audiences of course "The Longest Day" has a major disappointment; it leaves Canadian troops out entirely. There are two voice mentions that Canadian help was sent to the Normandy landings but the apparent suggestion is that theirs was a secret mission.

Nary a one manages to get on the screen.

This is an American film and there can be no quarrel with the emphasis thrown on U.S. participation. If other nations want to show how their troops performed on this most vital occasion they should make the films.

In the result however the balance is wrongly tilted.

Some British airborne units and Lord Lovat's Commandos are shown in action and interest in the sequences of landing German efforts are filmed, but the picture centres primarily on Omaha Beach, assaulted on June 6 by American soldiers. They in fact monopolized all the landing space.

Right well they did their job, in reality as well as in this spectacular re-creation, but American audiences for instance can be excused if they conclude that they have breached the Nazi fortress mainly by themselves.

And in actuality, I believe, two-thirds of the troops ashore on the "longest day" were British and Canadian.

American moviegoers will thus have the D-Day history served to them in unjust proportion. Nor will many of them, probably, ever find the truth by personal study or research. The impact of motion pictures is lasting where history is concerned.

Some Canadian viewers might get the wrong impression, too, which would be a pity.

Nevertheless "The Longest Day" is a memorable motion picture, and for those able to share the mood and operations of that fateful day the film represents an experience worth sharing.

Who Does It?

By GREGORY CLARK

IN MY time, I have sat in doctors' and dentists' waiting rooms as much as any man. And in all that time, I have never seen anybody else anything out of a magazine. Yet seldom in my life have I ever tried to read an article in a magazine in a doctor's or dentist's waiting room that I didn't find myself skunked, when I turned to page 43, to find the page neatly torn out.

Who mutilates the magazines in waiting rooms? Is anybody ever there alone? I have never been alone in a medical or dental waiting room. There are always two or three or even seven other

He had the right kind of

I said to him:

"I shall not be at the church

"Oh," he said with the submissive sadness. "It doesn't

It was a good ploy. I told him I would see him in the

of the clock.

He was under 30, about five-eight, and weighed at least 250 pounds. His hair was thick, black and wavy, and he had a round baby face, a cupid eyes. His hands were small and slender in fact.

He held them, between his stubby legs, nervously fingering a pencil, staring at the carpet and then at me and back to the carpet with exactly the

notes to whisper and finally controlled minor tones.

"I'm no good, Reverend. I can't blame anybody but myself. I was born illegitimate but when I was older my father married my mother. I had a good home; a fine upbringing. My father was a drunk. I didn't take the chances my good home gave me."

The point was nicely made.

His ingredients expertly mixed.

He rolled to his feet, suddenly aware of an unforgivable impertinence for the likes of him.

"I was sitting in your presence, Reverend. The likes of me shouldn't sit when they talk to you."

"If the chair can stand it I was able to support her. That's honorable isn't it?"

"Just normal. Honorable is harder."

"When I met Marty, I don't want to tell you his name. He's from here. Good family. I don't want to dirty his family. He buys me everything I need. He folks belong to your church. I don't want to dirty them. He took me to live with him. I gave up the girl. We're just waiting his parents here.

He thinks I'm out for a haircut now. Reverend, I need help."

"What kind of help?"

"I've been running all my life. I want to stop running."

"What kind of help?"

"I ran away from reform school. I stayed out three years and went back on my own."

"What help?"

"I ran away from home. I think I should go back home and face it among my own folks."

"Why?"

"I ran away from home. I have to stop running. I should stop running where I started running. The people there will laugh at me. They'll say 'That no good bum is home.' I have to face them. I know that. I have a psychiatrist for three years. I've got to face them."

"Where is home?"

"I can hitch. I can get rides on trucks."

"Why don't you do that?"

"I'm an excellent performance. It was polished and professional and I've enjoyed it.

But you're too dependent on TV clothes. It's worth five dollars. Here are the five. Now go."

I said "Now go" because he had used so many TV techniques on me and I wanted to use one on him.

He left, a disappointed man

and had failed to produce in his audience the joint evidence of success; money and belief. Money was good, of course, but money and belief better. One understands and respects a proud and conscientious worker.

I know every family in my parish. There is not one with a son in Los Angeles and not one with a son called Marty.

The fat actor suddenly reappeared in the parish house.

"Reverend," he said, "how about the priest at the Immaculate Conception? Would he believe me?"

"He'd believe every word—and send you to the Salvation

Army for a meal ticket."

"No dough? Gosh."

And he left in the opposite direction.

Kennedy Family

The Dynasty Issue

By GODFREY HODGKIN from Washington

THE shrewd, tough, loyal, rich, undoubted clan of the Kennedys has been a great asset to President John Kennedy on many a political field. The question is now being asked, however: Is the Kennedy family now becoming a liability?

The president's political enemies, dismayed perhaps by the evidence of his great personal popularity, claim that it is. They talk a good deal in a wistful way about the "dynasty issue," as if it were a political secret weapon which could be used to even up the odds.

And outside Washington, many ordinary, non-political Americans—inspired no doubt by the flood of speculation, innuendo and downright accusation they receive from the news media—seem to fear that the Kennedys have a long-term plan to monopolize power as their founding father, Joseph P. Kennedy, once cornered Scotch whisky in the U.S.

Even a member of the clan, if a rather distant and eccentric member, has joined in this talk. The playwright, Gore Vidal, the president's wife's stepbrother, wrote recently in a magazine repeating the charge that is so often made—half in jest, half in earnest—that the president's brother, Bobby, the attorney general, means to succeed him.

How seriously should such talk be taken? And how much harm does it do President Kennelly to have people speculating, even wildly, about his family's grand design?

To start with, the family should be taken seriously enough as a political force, as indeed it is. The 1960 campaign was very much a family operation in the beginning; the father's money and advice, the staff work and never-dying optimism of brother Bobby

Shriver, all played major parts in the victory. And every other member of a big and happy family contributed according to

Nor can anyone deny that the family's political influence is uniquely strong today. Robert

not merely worth his place in the cabinet; he is a tower of strength, acting almost as assistant president and never far from his brother with his stainless energy and undoubt-

going gets rough.

Sargent Shriver is not only

He admitted that the recent repeal of surcharges on imports would help the situation. "The surcharges hit Britain worse than other countries for about two-thirds of our imports were affected."

But even the end of surcharges is not going to solve Britain's trade problem with Canada.

"We are still being badly hit by Canadian anti-dumping laws and fair market value rules," said the British economist.

These regulations make it impossible for British goods to be sold in Canada at less than the price at which they are sold in the British domestic market.

This rule, of course, applies to all imports into Canada, but in countries like Japan where there are language barriers and different trading methods, the Canadian government is not always able to determine what the anti-dumping level should be.

"But everyone in Canada can find out quickly and accurately what the British domestic price is of any article imported into Canada," he said.

Because of this many British lines were being unfairly frozen out of the Canadian market.

During his visit to British Columbia Mr. Curral found that Britain has lost its extensive rail market in this province to Yugoslavia. He blamed the anti-dumping measures, adding that it was hard to tell what constituted dumping of Yugoslav rails.

The Canadian government's fair market value regulation which establishes the value of imported articles was such that the British car manufacturer had to offer his product to the Canadian market at a higher price than to any other country in the world.

Apert from that Mr. Curral believed that Britain would force its way into the Canadian market on many forms of capital goods.

One item of which he is extremely hopeful is the BAC 111, a new twin jet aircraft, shortly going into production. It is the jet version of the famous Viscount and Vanguard turbo-prop, and Mr. Curral hopes that TCA will be interested in the new product.

Just a year ago—on April 16, 1962—shares of Chrysler Corporation sold on New York Stock Exchange at $52. This week—just a year later—they sold at 100 1/2, more than double.

A very good reason for the increased valuation of Chrysler shares was given at the annual general meeting Tuesday by president Lynn A.

'Big' Steel Joins Higher Price Swing

NEW YORK (AP)—The swing to higher U.S. prices on selected steel products picked up momentum Tuesday as U.S. Steel Corp., industry giant, and three other major producers fell into line.

Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., No. 4 company, announced increases a couple of hours after "Big Steel." Then came Inland Steel Co., eighth ranking producer. Sixth-ranking Armco Steel Corp. announced increases a few hours earlier.

With industry leaders coming off the fence, there were signs the movement might snowball. Bethlehem Steel Co., second-ranked, had made no announcement.

The eight companies posting markups, including five of the big 10 U.S. makers, produced more than one-half of all American steel in 1962.

As yet, there was no sign of the start of protest from Washington that quickly met across-the-board steel increases a year ago and played a big part in their withdrawal.

In Congress, the nearest thing to a discouraging influence to date was an order for an inquiry into steel prices, profits and production problems.

The president, vacillating in Palm Beach, Fla., has maintained silence after cautioning steelmakers against upsetting general wage-price stability.

Kennedy said last Thursday, after Wheeling Steel Corp. started the price increase parade, that selected boosts would not necessarily have this effect.

Lying, Hiding Wiles Part of Female Guile

Second of a Series

If anyone had told me, back in those days when I was racing across the street to avoid tipping my hat to a girl, that I would someday be a doctor specializing in the care of women, I would have challenged him to a fist fight.

All boys go through a stage of hating girls. But it seemed to me that women were at the root of all the injustice in the world. If they weren't deliberately trained and taught to cheat and lie, they were certainly rewarded for it.

Sister's Word

I wasn't allowed to tease back at my sister when she teased me, as she loved to do. And if it were my sister's word against mine, there was never any question who was believed. Even today, certain childhood scenes stand out vividly in my mind—and I am still angry.

I Learned About Women

from Them By VIRGIL G. DAMON, MD and Isabella Taves

Book 50 Cents

As a small boy, I longed for a 50-cent drum which was displayed in the local general store. One day I saw my father's pants on a chair and found 50 cents which had fallen out of the pocket. I took it and ran down to the store.

The drum was gone, but a 10-cent corn popper hit my eye and, having what seemed to me riches, I bought it and returned the rest of the change innocently to my father. I was told never to pick up money which didn't belong to me, and allowed to keep the corn popper.

But we never used it that my sister didn't pipe up, "That's the corn popper Virgil stole."

To Get Even

I tried to get even by making fun of Isabella. Mother would kick me sharply under the table and my father would tell me coldly that it wasn't nice to be "personal" with girls. There was a neighbor girl who didn't do much to recommend the sex to me, either. When I played cards with her, if she didn't get a good hand, she would mess up the rest of the deck and insist on a reshuffle. If I were winning, she would say I cheated.

Not Gentlemenly

When I got mad at her and called her a liar, she ran and told her mother. I was sent home and punished. My mother believed me when I said I wasn't cheating, but told me it wasn't gentlemenly to call a girl a liar.

One day this same girl had been teasing me while I sat on the back step whittling a stick. I knew how little good it would do me to tease back, so I went on whittling and said nothing. She kicked me, hit my hand, and accidentally the knife slashed her shoe.

She ran screaming to her mother. I had to use my Christmas savings, a dollar and a half, to buy her a new pair of shoes.

Times have changed since I was a boy. But mothers still try to bring up their daughters to make the best of things as they are, to how to make whims, to accept the man as he is, and to hide their own feelings and wiles.

Takes Duplicity

This is simple basic sense because the aim of every mother is to see her daughter marry well, and she knows from experience that it takes tact and duplicity to snare the male, an instinctive wanderer.

Little girls as a result become much better and are believed, I used to discipline my son because he refused to ride in the back seat of our car with his older sister. It wasn't until they were both grown that I found out she used to pinch him unmercifully and he was afraid to complain because she could lie so well with a straight face.

Yet, like all men, that little boy grew up to join the solid ranks of us males who go on stubbornly whittling in the dark, shutting our eyes, pretending we are the ones who run things.

Better Chance

From the time the female child is conceived, she is stronger and has a better chance of survival than the male.

A woman stands pain better than a man. She is braver, more patient, more willing to sacrifice herself for her children and her husband. Having had, as a rule, some kind of pain at least once a month during her mature life, she is more adaptable to suffering, tougher.

She also seems to have a better understanding of hardship, is able to make the best of things even in a chronic illness, where most men get impatient and difficult.

Even personal observation, I have learned that this very strength makes women better at serving others without embarrassment. For example, a male nurse will do the mechanical things, and perhaps do them well, but he hasn't the sympathy and kindness which I see in women nurses, who can do the most personal things for patients without thinking anything about it.

Next—Why no woman is happy married to a man who lets her run all over him.

Trial Opens Here In Traffic Death

Several witnesses gave testimony as the assize court trial of Hendrick Witteveen opened at Victoria law courts yesterday.

Witteveen is charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He was charged after the injury and death of Arthur Vincent Seear, 2042 Meadow, pedestrian involved in an accident with a car New Year's Day at Bay and Richmond.

Testimony yesterday included that of Victoria detective Lester Clark who took pictures at the accident.

The trial continues today.

Canada Raps U.S. Plan To Cut Tourist Buying

WASHINGTON—Canadian authorities have protested a United States government proposal which would impose further restrictions on U.S. tourists spending in Canada and other countries, it was learned today.

Latest proposal is to withdraw the duty-free allowance on tourist goods which do not accompany the traveller on his return to the U.S.

Findalle Says:

Island Highway To Get Priority

Provincial highways department will likely widen the Trans-Canada Highway to four lanes from Goldstream in Victoria before it widens the Patricia Bay Highway, Saanich MIA John Tisdalle said last night.

"The Trans-Canada Highway is carrying the greatest load of traffic into Victoria, so I presume expansion of that road has priority over the Patricia Bay Highway," he said.

Mr. Tisdalle was commenting on reports that the West Saanich Road is being improved to serve as an alternate route to the airport and Swartz Bay ferry terminal while the Patricia Bay Highway is widened.

He said the work on the West Saanich Road involves easing of bad curves and widening of narrow road shoulders but has no connection with the widening of Patricia Bay Highway.

Once the work is completed a 40-mile-an-hour speed limit will be placed on the west road.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, as trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Narm Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Narm Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way ordered by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

LETTERS to the Editor

"Sorry No Children"—how often I have heard that phrase since we began looking for a home in Victoria some months ago. Are they such demons, these dear little creatures we are blessed with? I guess in some people's eyes, they are a sight more than just demons.

Whenever we have applied for living quarters in an apartment, the caretaker or owner takes one bright, glaring look at our small daughter and immediately starts ranting and raving about not allowing children in the building.

Why they feel this way about children is beyond me. If any damage is done by the child, the parents pay for it, not the landlord. The noise from these small beings isn't really much to put up with, even for the fussiest person.

What reason can these people have for frowning down on the "small fry"? Were they not children themselves once?

There is talk of finding homes for Victoria's elderly folks. An extremely fine thing to consider. How about some consideration for the young families?

HOME HUNTER.

Praise for Mr. Bennett

I would like to express my views regarding Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

I consider that Mr. Bennett has done more for B.C. than any other premier that B.C. has ever had.

He has also taken more abuse from those who would like to be in power.

Why not leave a good man alone when we have one and not take a chance on others who would not do half as much good work as he and the other members are doing.

A. T. FORRESTER, 2190 Lansdowne Road.

Insincere Courtesy

Regarding your editorial on the tourist association proposal to teach "hospitality," please deliver the tourists from this type of hypocrisy. If the persons who take jobs to serve the public and are considered adult enough for these jobs have not been taught courtesy and politeness from the time they are born and it does not come from a sincere liking for one's fellow man, it cannot be taught.

When I travel I can sense when people are being polite just to hold a job.

Being new to Victoria I have been subjected to much of this type of treatment, but thank goodness I isn't too often.

The "If you're going to spend some money we'll be nice to you but if you are not, get lost" attitude I have found in some of the stores that cater to tourists.

Before we moved here people asked me why I wanted to bury myself in cold, unfriendly Victoria. I disagreed with them and I still do. We love it here "for all that."

OBSERVER.

Fair Play in Pay?

I noticed that police and firemen are to have an increase in salary. With no wish to detract from either of these, I find myself comparing their salaries with those of hospital orderlies.

It takes three years to properly train an orderly. He also has his occupational hazards; he can make life more worthwhile for his patients, or the opposite; he has the added hazard of getting along with and pleasing highly critical (rightly so) and emotional personnel; his work can be dedicated, as can that of the best type of police officer.

An orderly has no regular weekends at home; he works shifts at three different times of the day and night; he may spend one out of three full Christmas days at home.

His salary starts at about $235 and ends at about $330, as against $475 and $488 for a policeman and fireman, as reported in your paper.

All this of course applies to nurses, only more so; they get less than top orderlies. A lot of orderlies are not even covered by unemployment insurance.

Four Ridings Could Have Vote Recounts

OTTAWA (CP)—Defeated candidates in two ridings, and possibly in at least two other constituencies, are going to seek a judicial recount of the votes in the April 8 general election.

Minister Paul Martin, who lost by 16 votes to Liberal Paul O. Gosset, said Tuesday he is applying for a recount before a superior court judge in his home town of Campbell's Bay, Que.

In Rimouski, Que., Liberal candidate Gerard Legare who lost out to Gerard Ouellet of Social Credit, also applied Tuesday for a recount.

In British Columbia, Jack Taggart, provincial co-chairman of the Liberal campaign committee, said his party will seek a recount in Kamloops riding unless the present situation is altered drastically in the official count. Complete unofficial returns showed Liberal Jari Whist trailing Progressive Conservative Dr. C. J. M. W. Loughby, by 158 votes.

In the Ontario riding of Lambton—Kent, where Liberal John Burgess trailed Progressive Conservative M. T. McCosken by 14 votes, a request by the Liberals for a recount also was a possibility.

Quebec, Vancouver People Beg from Sweep Winners

There are fewer beggars in Victoria than in Vancouver and Quebec, a city sweepstakes winner said yesterday.

"Victoria people are very good -- they haven't bothered us very much," Mrs. Adam Johnston, 541 Niagara, said yesterday.

"But we've had a lot of begging letters from Vancouver and Quebec."

"I'm amazed at some of the requests people have made."

Mr. Johnston won $150,000 on the Irish sweepstakes three weeks ago and since then the couple have received letters asking for gifts totaling $32,000.

LOST MONEY

One man who asked for money told the Johnstons he lost all his own playing the horses. Another, from Ontario, was a woman who wanted the Johnstons to pay her way to B.C. so she could see her son graduate from school.

"We'd like to help, but how can we tell if the letters are genuine?" Mrs. Johnston asked.

There's one more thing against the Johnstons giving their money away -- it hasn't arrived from Ireland yet.

$48 All That's Left Of $3,000 in Goods

A young man who started out with $3,000 worth of goods finished up with a mere $48 entered guilty pleas on 16 counts of obtaining goods by false pretences in city magistrate's court yesterday.

Charles Henry Bird, of Hamilton, Ont., was remanded by Magistrate William Oatley to June 23 for a probation report.

Bird admitted using cheques from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at Douglas and Comstock, to purchase close to $3,000 in goods from Victoria merchants on Friday and Saturday when checking a bank account was impossible.

Bird bought diamond rings, cameras, clothing, shoes and luggage.

He was arrested in Vancouver Sunday and was brought to Victoria Monday.

Victoria detective Norman Bath told the court he doubted there was any chance of recovering the goods. He said two articles were pawned in Vancouver. The rest were sold in "cheap beer parlors."

Found guilty of assault causing bodily harm in a shooting incident in February, Dorothy Barker was fined $100 in Colwood magistrate's court yesterday and placed on a two-year $500 bond to keep the peace.

In the incident Donald Branson was shot in the leg.

In passing sentence, Magistrate A. I. Thomas said, "There is no purpose in sending you to jail. Something has to be done to change your way of life."

He said he called for the $500 bond because he wanted "control of this matter."

In Victoria magistrate's court, Keith Loadman, 408 Dunedin, was sentenced to one month for uttering a forged document and five days for having no driver's licence.

"Through their efforts Ken is well on the way to recovery. I am truly grateful."

Comely But Shy? Give It a Try

Victoria Jaycees are urging Victoria's shy but comely girls to come forward and enter the Miss Victoria contest.

The Jaycees' Doug Webb Tuesday held out the promise of exciting top prizes, including a $100 formal gown and $300 mink stole, to induce Victoria girls to enter the May 13-18 Miss Victoria pageant.

TALENT MINOR PART

He warned girls not to be scared away by the three-minute talent part of the contest. It's only a minor part of judging, he said, and contestants must only do one three-minute item.

And contestants will get free professional help from entertainer Jerry Cosley and beautician Helen Beirne.

TWO MORE ENTRIES

He announced the names of two more contestants last night, raising the total so far entered to 10. The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce hopes for 20 before entries close April 23.

New entrants are Patricia Kelly, 19, of 3178 Alder, and Marie Webb, 18, of 188 Violet.

BECAME MISS CANADA

The 1961 Miss Victoria, Nina Holden, went on to become Miss Canada, said Mr. Webb, adding that other inducements include presiding over Victoria Day celebrations as May Queen and numerous out-of-town junkets representing Victoria.

He urged girls 18 to 26 to phone for further information. Inquiries may be phoned to Mr. Webb at 383-0744 or 477-4342, or Win Garcin at 382-6111, local 2564, or 383-1494.

"If the present (lower mainland) rate of load growth continues... we could be short of energy for peaking purposes in the winter of 1967," he said.

Mr. Mainwaring said the hydro-electric potential of the Columbia River cannot be developed in time to meet the requirements of 1968.

Litterbug Bylaw Has Sharp Teeth

The present bylaw has the teeth required to crack down on litterbugs if only police will use them, city solicitor T. P. O'Grady said yesterday.

His report to the public works committee said there appeared to be no problem, either in relation to powers of the city to enact the anti-litter provision, or in enforcement.

The bylaw provides for penalties up to a maximum of $250.

Fears expressed by some Douglas Street merchants of the downtown area proper concerning one-way traffic are groundless at present, traffic committee said yesterday.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the matter of one-way traffic is at present undergoing extensive study by city hall traffic experts. "There will be no hasty action," the mayor said, "this matter requires a great deal of study."

Tax Setup In Canada Ranks High

OTTAWA (CP) — The new royal commission on taxation held its first public sitting Tuesday and heard, among other things, that Canada has one of the best tax structures in the world, that the commission should make an extensive study of foreign taxes, and that the Canadian government is too quick on the trigger with tax changes.

Opening a week of hearings that are designed to raise questions instead of answering them, the six-man commission was told by the Canadian Tax Foundation that despite the imperfections in the existing system, Canada's tax structure "ranks with the best in the world."

Foundation director Ronald Robertson said the commission now has a unique opportunity to make it "the very best."

Spahn Nears 42nd Birthday Needs Certificate as Proof

Warren Spahn will be 42 years old next Tuesday, but the way he has started his 16th major league season—and that doesn't count three years in the service—may become his best.

Normally a slow starter, Spahn has started twice this season, finished twice, won twice and allowed but one run. He was in rare form yesterday in pitching Milwaukee Braves to a four-hit, 8-0 shut-out over Philadelphia Phillies. It was the 329th win of his major league career, putting him eighth on the list of all-time winners.

Spahn struck out seven and walked four as he pitched his 350th complete game and 56th shutout. It was his 645th game, and only 10 other pitchers have appeared in as many.

The game was also a milestone for Ed Matthews. The 31-year-old third baseman, who hit his first major league home run on April 19, 1952, against the Phillies, became the eighth player to hit 400 when he connected in the seventh inning.

Two other shutouts, bringing the early-season total to 14, were pitched yesterday as play continued to feature improved mound work.

Billy Pierce, who hasn't yet lost a game in Candlestick Park, boosted his home-field win streak to 14 games by pitching San Francisco Giants to a 7-0 win over Houston Colts.

A crowd of 40,782 watched the Giants in their home opener and saw a game held up time and again by arguments over balk calls. Two were called against Pierce in one inning and three against Houston pitchers. Victory put the Giants atop the National League standings with five wins in six games.

Best pitching performance of all was turned in by Sam McDowell, young Cleveland southpaw who seems destined for greatness.

McDowell allowed but two hits and struck out 13 as the Indians took Washington Senators, 3-0, with Woodie Held's home run in the seventh inning breaking a scoreless deadlock.

and designed expressly to cram them with as much information as possible in the four days.

Mr. Peterson addressed the 80 aspiring coaches in Victoria University's Gordon Head gymnasium.

"Fitness depends on mass participation," the minister stated.

He said that this did not mean that it would be more difficult to single out the outstanding athletes.

"There is no conflict between mass participation and the turning out of first class athletes."

PAYS TRIBUTE
Mr. Peterson paid tribute, on behalf of the people of British Columbia, to the Canadian Legion for their great service to the province in organizing and supporting the clinic.

The real success of the clinic, he pointed out, was now in the hands of the participants.

"Success of track and field in each community will depend on how well you assimilate the information you gain here in the next four days."

TEACHERS ONLY
Clinic, headed by David Abbott with assistance of Geoff Dyson, national director of the Legion sports program, is not for athletes. It is for teachers, Bill Monbouquette of Boston Red Sox and Hank Aguirre of Detroit Tigers also came up with fine pitching efforts.

Monbouquette pitched a five-hitter to beat Baltimore Orioles, 4-1, with Dick Stuart, obtained to take advantage of the close-in leftfield fence, coming through with a three-run homer in his first game at Fenway Park.

Aguirre, latest in the Detroit line of Yankee-killers, beat the New York Yankees, 7-2, although giving up 10 hits. Later, for the second time in two starts, was Whitey Ford.

Aguirre, who had only three hits in three seasons, got a fourth in the five-run fourth inning which won the game. He topped a ball down the third-base line with the bases full and three runs scored when Clete Boyer made a bad throw trying to get Aguirre, who had the throw beaten in an event.

PITCHING PARADE
But there was no evidence of pitching at Minneapolis, where the Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Angels saw a major league record by using 17 pitchers before the Twins won, 11-10, in the 13th inning.

It took four hours and 41 minutes to complete the game as the Angels used seven of their nine pitchers and the Twins four of their seven from the ninth inning on. The Twins tied with two runs in the ninth, again with two runs in the 11th and then won with two runs in the 13th.

The winning run scored when Ed Grba walked George Banks with the bases loaded.

Oh, yes, New York Mets lost for the seventh time in seven games after scoring four runs, two on Duke Snider's third home run, in the fourth inning to take a 4-1 lead. Cincinnati Reds came back with five in their half of the inning, eventually won, 7-4.

Keon Comes Through in Clutch Again As Outplayed Leafs Beat Red Wings

By BILL MacDOUGALL.

DETROIT (CP)—A third-period goal by Dave Keon nullified a superior performance by Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night as Toronto Maple Leafs scored a 4-2 victory over the Wings and took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The Leafs, outclassed for much of the game, were having their troubles keeping the Wings from snapping out of a 2-2 tie when the speedy, 23-year-old centre outplayed the Detroit defence at 9:42 to put Toronto ahead for good.

Red Kelly scored his second goal of the game with a little over two minutes remaining for good measure.

The Toronto victory was in spite of some superb play by Detroit's Gordie Howe, who burst out of the doldrums that had characterized some of his earlier Stanley Cup final play.

George Armstrong scored the Toronto goal. Howe and rookie Ed Joly got the Detroit goals.

Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower had his busiest night of the series, and the player who gave him the most trouble was his summertime fishing companion, Howe.

The Detroit right winger, who more often than not is one of the best players on the ice, had an assist on Joly's goal besides the own marker. He was busy all night either shooting or setting up teammates for shots at the Toronto netminder.

Bower, at an official 38 the oldest player in the league, made 33 saves. His youthful performance did nothing to encourage never-ending rumors that he is more than 40.

Detrol goaltender Terry Sawchuk was less busy with 23 saves.

The Leafs had to come from behind twice for their victory. Detroit took a 1-0 lead in the first period, Toronto tied it in the second and again Detroit went ahead. The Leafs tied it again before the end of the middle stanza.

The teams now go to Toronto for the fifth game Thursday with the Leafs favored to win the Stanley Cup for the second consecutive year. If necessary, the sixth game will be played here Sunday night and the seventh in Toronto next Tuesday.

HOWE GETS FIRST
Howe started off the scoring with a long shot that bounced into the net off Bower's glove. The Detroit winger took a pass from Alex Delvecchio, who was at centre ice, and took one stride over the blue line before cutting loose with the shot that gave Detroit a 1-0 lead at 5:24 of the first period.

Keon fed Armstrong the pass that led to Toronto's first goal, at 1:17 of the second period. Defenceman Tim Horton shoved the puck into the Detroit end from the centre ice area and Keon dug it out. He passed from the corner to Armstrong, standing in front of Sawchuk, who didn't hesitate in whacking the puck behind the goaltender.

Joly helped set up his own goal at 2:33 with Leafs' Bob Pulford off for high-sticking Detroit defenceman Bill Gadabey.

ALERT RECOVERY
He worked his way through a maze of players to within easy shooting distance, but Bower stopped his shot. The puck bounced out into a group of players and, with Bower flat on the ice, skidded past the open corner of the net. Joly picked up from behind the net and quickly tucked it in the corner by pushing his stick around between Bower and the goal.

Gadabey was Sawchuk's worst enemy on Kelly's first goal, at 17:41. He shot from about 15 feet inside the blue line and the defenceman, in an attempt to block the puck, fell to his knees, instead he acted as a perfect screen for Sawchuk.

Detrol centre Norm Ullman was an unwitting and unwitting accomplice on Keon's goal. The Leafs player stickhandled around the Detroit zone and tried to set up Armstrong. The puck went astray and Keon grabbed it again. With two wings hanging on to him, he shot and Sawchuk blocked the puck.

It dropped to his feet just as Ullman went by and the Detroit

CLEVELAND OPENS IN MINNEAPOLIS (MAYBE)

DETROIT (CP)—A job shortage in Northern Ireland is driving some of Ulster's finest football players to Canada.

Next on the list to leave is 23-year-old Roy Ross, goalkeeper for Glenora in the Irish Football League and Ulster's footballer-of-the-year award winner. He flew to Toronto April 28.

Another Irish player, Ken Beattie, left some weeks ago and will play for Hamilton Steelers.

Fred Peterson, 26-year-old inside-forward, is awaiting a sailing date for Toronto. Wilbur Cuth, captain of Portadown, has had Canadian offers this season and last but may stay at home because his wife is expecting a baby.

Unemployment is running around 10 per cent in Northern Ireland, and sports editors agree that "there isn't much here for the boys."

Detroit Fans Take It Hard

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings gave Toronto Maple Leafs a tough fight in Tuesday night's Stanley Cup playoff game—but Detroit fans made things even tougher.

The Leafs, fresh from a 4-2 win over the Wings, were pelted with paper cups, programs, and balls of paper as they crossed the lobby to their dressing room.

The taunting fans, free with profanity, encircled the runway to the Leafs room. Defenceman Carl Brewer, hit on the face with a paper cup, raised his stick in defiance as he entered the doorway.

RILED EVEN KELLY
Even Red Kelly, former Lady Byng Trophy winner as the National Hockey League's most gentlemanly player and a member of Parliament, stopped to answer the taunts.

Later, Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach decided to talk to reporters in the lobby because the Leafs room wasn't large enough to accommodate everyone. But the fans wouldn't allow it.

CROWD FOLLOWS
One barely youth tried to pick a fight with a Toronto reporter. Imlach decided to move further up the lobby—but the abusive crowd followed.

Finally Imlach called it quits. He went back to the Leafs room, and let the reporters in, and let the reporters in, and let the reporters in.

RETORT SUPREMACY
"You've seen your last game," he yelled back at his tormentors "why don't you go home?"

"I think you'll find most of those people aren't even from Detroit," said Ed Abel, manager-coach of the Wings. "A lot of them are from Windsor."

The Wings room was the quietest it has been since the series opened. After Sunday's 3-2 win, some Detroit players said it wasn't worth anything without another one Tuesday night.

"Sure it hurt us," said Abel, circling around the dressing room and partially avoiding reporters.

MOONEY
Bill Gadabey, penalized late in the third period for hitting Bob Pulford, didn't blame referee Vern Bullock.

"He had no choice," said Gadabey. "I was holding all right. I couldn't do anything else."

The penalty was costly. The score at the time was only 3-2 but Kelly scored while Gadabey was off to put the game out of reach.

Imlach said after the game that Keon is his most valuable player.

"If I were asked to pick one I'd have to take him," said the Leafs coach. "I wouldn't trade him for Gordie Howe. He's young—23—and can do everything."

While Imlach was pleased

Irish Stars In Canada On Job Hunt

LONDON (CP)—A job shortage in Northern Ireland is driving some of Ulster's finest football players to Canada.

Mann Cup Champions Lose, 9-7

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver took a two-goal lead in their pre-season Shrine Cup ice hockey series Tuesday night, defeating New Westminster 9-7, before some 500 fans at Kerrisdale Arena.

Second game of the two-game, total-goal series will be played in New Westminster April 27.

Gordie Gimples and Bob Marsh scored twice for Vancouver and Bill Barbour, Sid Warrick, Ross McDonald, Sam Penner and Gord Fredrickson got one goal each. Ron Flaten got two goals for New Westminster's Mann Cup champions, the others going to Billy Jobb, Paul Parnell, Ken Oddy, Doug Wallis and Bill Wilkes.

Barbour, who also had four assists, was thrown out of the game in the fourth quarter when he received a minor and a suspension for protesting a minor penalty to Marsh.

Bettor Wins $47,611—Less Taxes

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Royal W. Holmes, 38, of Jewett City, Conn., was identified Tuesday as the holder of a twin-double ticket worth $47,611 at Lincoln Downs.

The internal revenue service in Providence said Holmes, a cable checker at the Plastic Wire and Cable Corp. in Jewett City, cashed his ticket Monday night and picked up his winnings.

The internal revenue agency said it was on hand to withhold the government's share of the earnings but declined to say what that was.

Near the End of the Season

DETROIT (CP)—A third-period goal by Dave Keon nullified a superior performance by Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night as Toronto Maple Leafs scored a 4-2 victory over the Wings and took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The Leafs, outclassed for much of the game, were having their troubles keeping the Wings from snapping out of a 2-2 tie when the speedy, 23-year-old centre outplayed the Detroit defence at 9:42 to put Toronto ahead for good.

Red Kelly scored his second goal of the game with a little over two minutes remaining for good measure.

winger accidentally kicked the puck into the net.

Kelly's second goal, with Gadsby off for holding Pulford, came with three minutes and 15 seconds left in the game. It too was scored on a long shot, with Ed Lizenberger of the Leafs standing in front of the net looking for a rebound.

He turned out to be a screen for the shot instead.

Blake Sticks With Canyons

DETROIT (CP)—Toe Blake will definitely be back as Coach of Montreal Canadiens next season but only because the team made a poor showing in this year's Stanley Cup semi-final.

Here to watch the final series between Toronto Maple Leafs, who eliminated Montreal four games to one, and Detroit Red Wings, Blake said in an interview.

"Mr. Selke (Frank Selke, managing director of the Canadiens) said this would be a poor time to quit."

Blake said after the semi-finals he didn't feel he was "getting through to the players."

"I still don't feel I was getting through to the players," said Blake Tuesday. "When you coach as long as I've reached them, I don't think I was a good coach this year."

Blake said if he had quit coaching it wouldn't necessarily have meant the end to his hockey career.

"I might have gone into another line in the business," he said. But he didn't say whether this would be an upstairs job with the Canadiens or with another National Hockey League team.

"I don't see any management openings on the other clubs," he said. "Maybe with some minor league team, who knows?"

HOWE SAYS NO
One rumor which swept through hockey headquarters at the Detroit-Leland Hotel Tuesday was that Howie Meeker, who coached the Leafs in 1954-57, would replace Rudy Pilon at Chicago. Pilon, coach of the Black Hawks, is again centre of the annual speculation about the Hawks.

"Ridiculous," said Meeker, also in town for the final.

Cuba to Compete In Pan-Am Games

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Cuba, promised to rectify . . . they will be allowed to take part in the fourth Pan American Games starting Saturday in Rio de Janeiro.

Gen. Clark, who is representative of the International Olympic Committee and president of the Pan-American Sports Organization, said that in view of these assurances Brundage had agreed to allow Cuban participation in the games.

Garden Notes

After-Bloom Care

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRMS

Our small rock garden is putting on an exceptionally brilliant display of color this spring, probably because of the ripening effect of last summer's prolonged periods of sunshine. While we can't boast of the exquisite varieties you see in the gardens of the confirmed alpine buffs, our humble aubretia, saxifrage, alyssum, arabis and creeping phlox are making a kaleidoscope of color which is a sheer delight to the eye.

As I have been preaching these many years, the important time in the life of any perennial plant is AFTER the flowers are finished—actually, the time when a fellow tends to lose interest in the plants. Rock garden plants are no exception to this rule, and a few tricks given them after blooming will induce another brilliant performance next year.

I have never found any tonic quite so effective for rock garden plants as a good top dressing. For most of my plants, I dump a bucketful of damp peat moss, a bucketful of coarse sand, and a cupful of Vigoro on the concrete floor of my garage and mix them together very thoroughly with a coal shovel.

Then, with a pailful of this gritty mixture in hand, I make the rounds of my plants, dumping a good handful into the centre of each clump and working a bit more around and under the outer edges. The startling benefits that accrue from this simple treatment must be seen to be believed, and it is well worth the time and effort spent on the job even at a time of the year when dozens of chores are clamoring to be done.

In addition to the mulching effect of the mixture, which conserves moisture and coolsness around the roots, a lot of shoots push out new roots from the base of their stems into this peat-sand dressing. This is all to the good, of course, for the more roots you have, the greater the intake of food and drink, resulting in a healthier and more vigorous plant.

Alpine plants growing on an elevated spot in the rock garden will often suffer from exposure of their roots when soil washes away to a lower level during the winter rains. This dressing tucks them up again in a blanket of congenial rooting material.

The cushion saxifrage has an annoying habit of dying out in the centre of the plant soon after they get into their stride in the spring. This, I think, is due to the competition of the more vigorous roots around the outer edge of the clump. This, together with crowding and congestion, results in starvation and shortage of moisture for the centre roots.

With plants of this habit, the peat-sand mixture should be worked well into the clump so that each individual shoot is earthed up rather like a potato plant, covering the base of the stems right up to a point just below the rosette of leaves. Here again, this congenial rooting medium stimulates the production of tiny root hairs.

Before applying the top dressing, hand-weed the whole area first. Then break up the soil around each plant lightly with the hand fork and work the peat-sand mixture into position with the tips of the fingers.

Handsomeness Profits Go to Soviet Union

Tories Borrow from Reds

By RICHARD HIKEMANN from London

The Moscow People's Bank, located only a stone's throw from the Bank of England in the City of London, is threatening many of its Western rivals in this fortress of capitalism.

The Soviet bank, run on profit-motive lines, was founded in the financial heart of London by capitalist-baiting Russian revolutionaries in 1919.

Last week the bank declared a dividend of 12 per cent to its Russian shareholders based on a net profit of £375,000 ($1,025,000)—an increase of nearly one-third compared with last year.

Moreover the bank's turnover more than doubled in 1962, to £11,000,000 from £5,300,000.

The proof that a Communist organization can operate more successfully than most in London's City—the financial district — with its centuries-old capitalist environment, is given by the even more impressive growth of the Moscow bank's assets.

Five years ago, they amounted to £28,500,000 ($23,800,000). Today, they stand at £104,000,000.

The bank does not intend to call it a day after such success. In his annual statement, Jovial Chairman A. I. Duboshanov announced that shareholders have been asked to put up more capital, to double the share capital to £4,000,000. The shares are held by banks and trading organizations in the Soviet Union, and the London bank's main business is to finance trade and shipments between the West and the Communist bloc.

But there is more to it than that. The annual report says that "taking the wider view" executives of the bank last year paid visits not only to Eastern and Western Europe, but also to Africa, Cuba and the Middle East.

"We are already providing short-term credit facilities to finance the trade of these countries and we look forward to a steady expansion of our business in these directions," the report says.

Another profitable line for the bank has been to grant short-term loans at current rates to local authorities in Britain which are short of money for their housing, schools and hospital plans.

It does not seem to have made any difference to either party that the borrowers were usually Conservatives and the lenders always Communists.

Last year, the Conservative council of Ryde, on the Isle of Wight, borrowed £100,000 from the Moscow bank. In 1961, Dawley district council in central England got a big loan from the same source.

A few years ago, Sir Winston Churchill's electoral district of Woodford borrowed £50,000 from the Russian bank.

Apart from its Russian chairman, nearly all its employees are British, including General Manager Cyril Hicks.

In three years, its staff here has increased four times to 120 persons.

The bank is British-registered and run like any other private enterprise bank in the British capital. The only difference is that the profits go to the Soviet Union where the shareholders are.

Grace Pulls Strings

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Her serene Highness Grace Kelly is pulling some royal strings to have Love and them shared in Monaco. I was amazed when I was in Monaco a few months ago to see all the sovereigns, post cards, mugs, etc., the photographs of Grace, Prince Rainier and the children, sold with serene approval to the tourists.

What's this I hear about R. J. Wagner leaving Marlene Dietrich behind in Hollywood while he returned to Europe?

JOHN CROSBY Learns . . .

'How to Succeed' Totally French!

PARIS—The other day I had a drink with Raymond Castans, who is French to the core, who doesn't speak a word of English, and who has been commissioned to translate into French that enormously American impromptu of big business called How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

What I wanted to know is how can anything as American as How To Succeed become alive and meaningful to the French, especially when written by someone as French as Castans, who speaks not so good the English?

When I asked with these queries, M. Castans exploded in French, as follows: "American? I don't think How To Succeed is at all American."

"Let us consider the idea—a very important part of the story of How To Succeed—of a secretary who is under the special protection of someone very high in the organization. Let us contemplate the idea that the prettier the girl is and the dumber she is the more likely it is that her protector is very important indeed and one must not touch—you think we don't have this situation in France? The surprising thing is that you have it in America. I had no idea you were so civilized."

"Or let us consider that other character—the nephew of the big boss who uses his relationship to advance himself. In French business organizations there are many, many nephews. French business is choked by nephews; it drowns in nephews. But I'm surprised you have nephews in American business."

How did American business get so rich, so powerful, so efficient if it has nephews? This situation is very French."

"How about the golf game on Sunday morning?" I said, grasping at straws. "Certainly, that's a quality American custom, playing golf with the chairman of the board."

"Not a bit," said Castans. "They all play golf, the French business men. And, naturally, with the chairman of the board. Who else?"

"All those jokes about quiz shows?" I said. "Certainly you don't have quiz shows."

"We not only have quiz shows in France. We have the same jokes."

"But," I said, "the whole idea of How To Succeed is that of an ambitious young man clambering over the prostrate bodies of his colleagues by fair means or foul, preferably by foul."

"French, Very French. I'm surprised you even understand these things in America."

"One thing we don't have and we'll have to explain that in the script—is the coffee break."

The coffee break, he said, is unknown in France. The whole idea of the rhythm of a big business being stopped cold at the middle of the morning so that everyone can have a cup of coffee is quite foreign to the French.

The French business man interrupts the powerful rhythms of money-making not for coffee in the morning but for something infinitely more refreshing in the afternoon.

Weren't they all set to be married? . . . But George Burns won't go too far from Beverly Hills where his Grace abides. She has not been too well in the past few years, which is why George recently turned down some eastern night club offers. . . . His ex-partner Carol Channing cut her Marlene Dietrich impersonation from her act. Marlene didn't like it.

Young Robert Walker, son of the late actor, told me that when his wife gave up smoking, she broke out in a rash. "It disappeared when she started smoking again."

I hope Danny Kaye will take his present show at the Ziegfeld Theatre in New York to the London Palladium. It's the old Danny—which means the best there is.

Max Baer flew right back to Germany after the Oscar awards. He'll be very busy for the next few months. First comes his picture with Melina Mercouri and Peter Sellers in Greece, for Jules Dassin. Then he is a triple threat in Hamburg, starring in Tinto Brass, by day, appearing on the stage in Hamlet at night and directing the play Atlantis also by day. How can this be done?

Margaret O'Brien's almost-as-lovely daughter Brownie, makes her film debut with mama and Henry Fonda, in Spencer Mountain. Young Brownie has been dating Tony Magall, son of the film executive.

Carolyn Jones is sporting an $18,000 diamond ring, which she won in her 10th anniversary marriage cake. What if she had taken a big bite and swallowed the ring in the cake? Just the thought gave loving husband Aaron Spelling complications.

If you want to know why Paul Newman's Hud is in black and white rather than in color, director-producer Marty Roth explained. "The scene of the slaughter of diseased cattle would have been impossible in color." The rotund Marty started life as a character actor. They sometimes make the best directors.

Because of a crippling childhood injury, the doctors predicted she would never walk again. So she took up dancing to regain her strength. This led to a film career and eventually an Oscar. In The Caretakers she gives aid to sick people. She plays the head nurse in a hospital. Her name? Joan Crawford.

Whatever happened to Ann-Margaret's $10,000 gown, ordered especially for her to wear at the Oscar awards, and whatever happened to Ann-Margaret? While we are searching, I can tell you that Janet Leigh is starring in their film, Bye Bye Birdie. Janet was under the impression that she was the star.

Trustees Rap Beauty Spectacle

Greater Victoria school board last night turned the full force of its town on participation of high school girls in the annual Miss Victoria contest—but left it at that.

The board went on record as "looking with disfavor" on school girls taking part but decided against writing a letter to the sponsors of the contest, Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, advising them of the stand.

"This is a matter of no idle concern to us," John Gough, district school superintendent, told the board members. "For the past two years Miss Victoria has been drawn from Victoria High School."

In a memorandum to the school board on the subject, Mr. Gough made these points:

● In spite of assertions to the contrary, this contest is based on physical charm and the contestants are usually involved in a bathing beauty contest before large audiences as a public spectacle.

● The winners are surrounded by adulation which is not the deserved praise won as a result of scholarship or as the result of endurance, practice and skill in an athletic competition, or as the outcome of an outstanding performance in music, art or dancing.

● Competitions like this one, therefore, create a false sense of values for the students.

● The winner's whole personality may be endangered by press accounts and "cheese cake" pictures, public ceremonies, expensive and extravagant gifts, money prizes, lavish holiday trips.

● It should be noted that participating businesses have no real interest in the contest; ant beyond her usefulness in advertising their products.

● This contest, in the eyes of the schools, is a form of exploitation of youth; and it is contrary to the proper levels of education.

Boat Ban Discrimination

A ban on boat-parking in Oak Bay front yards would constitute discrimination and a restriction of individual rights, it was charged last night.

Oak Bay council referred the proposal, by its planning committee, to its solicitor for a report at the next meeting.

"If you're going to do it with boats, how can you not do it with cars?" asked Coun. Allan Cox, arguing that the proposed legislation was discriminatory.

Coun. Fred Robinson said 95 per cent of boats and boat trailers parked in Oak Bay front yards are not objectionable.

Coun. J. D. Vatts said some boats in front yards are "definitely eyesores," and Coun. Alex Henry called the proposed ban "a step in the right direction."

Reasoning to allow a House of Stud, for the Sisters of St. Ann, to be built at Arbutus Road and Queenswood Drive, was rejected at a public meeting of Saanich council last night.

Ratepayers of the area presented a brief opposing the proposed rezoning.

Female staff of the Victoria visitors' bureau on Government Street has a new look—smart red blazers.

The new uniforms, including a simple knit tunic, white blouse and navy skirts, are identical to the uniforms worn by employees at the bureau's information booth in Seattle last summer.

Man Swept Over Niagara Witness in City Man's Trial

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A trust company manager who police believe was swept to his death over Niagara Falls Monday was to have testified in Vancouver Friday in connection with an $837,000 bond theft in 1959 from the company he managed.

The man, William George Dales, 56, manager of the Premier Trust Company Office at St. Catharines, was reported missing earlier in the day by his wife after failing to return home from a service station. Mr. Dales' car was found near a parapet overlooking the falls, after hundreds of tourists watched a man jump into the Niagara River and be carried over the 165-foot drop.

Mr. Dales was to have flown to Vancouver Monday to be a witness at the assize court trial of David Wilson, 32, of Victoria, charged with two counts of possessing coupons from stolen government bonds.

It was erroneously reported earlier that Mr. Dales was to testify in Vancouver at the preliminary hearing of Daniel Henry Derbom, 33, charged with possession of stolen property after a bank accepted $7,000 in government bonds as collateral for a loan.

Wilson's trial was adjourned Monday until April 18 after two witnesses had been heard. No mention was made of Dales' death but police said it was one reason for the adjournment.

The St. Catharines office of Premier Trust was broken into Feb. 1, 1959.

Varsity Students' Job Chances Good

Employment possibilities for Victoria University students over the summer vacation break are bright.

"An estimate based on last year's results indicates that at least 300 students have summer jobs assured . . . in addition to those who have arranged their own jobs," George Bevis, manager of Victoria office of the National Employment Service, said last night.

"An accurate figure will not be possible until the employers and students report their hiring to the campus office during the summer.

"In general, the work situation is reasonably good but both the provincial and federal governments' austerity programs have reduced the number of jobs in this field."

The NES office on the Lansdowne campus of the university has arranged casual and part-time jobs through the school year in addition to arranging summer employment.

"The other 120 are the start of the placements being arranged for the coming summer."

Water in Victoria 'Flat and Insipid'

Reeve George Murdoch complained yesterday of the "flat and insipid" taste of Greater Victoria's drinking water despite annual flushing of mains. Commissioner R. A. Upward told the water board it was possible to aerate the water supply, as Reeve Murdoch suggested, but the cost would be out of all proportion to the benefits obtained.

'Grossly Unfair'

Criticism Angers School Board

Criticism of school boards by municipal leaders over the weekend was "grossly unfair," Greater Victoria school board counter-charged last night.

"I feel sure these remarks were not made with any malice whatsoever," trustee P. G. Burn said angrily.

"... In fact, I doubt if very much forethought was involved."

"To say that this board is not careful how it spends money and doesn't care a shiner's dam is grossly unfair both to the officials and trustees."

"A great many hours were spent 'paring down' the prepared budget . . ."

"I feel the remarks of these municipal leaders are not realistic . . . Surely we must realize that education must be paid for even if we may not agree with the method of collecting . . ."

"With the high standard of skills needed to successfully enter the labor market today we would be short-changing our young people if we gave them a second-class education, which is what would happen if insufficient monies were available."

Mr. Burn, chairman of the school board's public relations committee, was replying to criticism by Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich, Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay and Reeve A. C. Wertsch of Esquimalt.

The three Reeves were made unhappy by Education Minister Leslie Peterson's announcement of provincial grants towards school costs which will boost school taxes in the area.

Trustee David Logan took issue with a claim by Reeve Murdoch that Oak Bay would save $70,000 a year if it was not a member of the Greater Victoria school board.

"How he arrived at this figure I don't know. To do it you would have to analyze a hypothetical Oak Bay school district . . . and I am quite certain it was never done."

"So where does he get this mythical $70,000 figure?"

"I would hazard a guess that if it was possible for Oak Bay to set up its independent school board they would be very sorry."

Hillside

Relining Of Main Proposed

Greater Victoria water board yesterday decided to spend an estimated $20,000 on relining of the 24-inch steel water main running under Hillside Avenue.

Because the main is an integral part of the city's distribution system, Victoria crews will handle a major share of the work. The actual relining of the pipe with concrete will likely be handled by an outside firm.

ANOTHER 20 YEARS
Commissioner R. A. Upward said the lining should give the main which he termed the "backbone of the city's water distribution system" another 20 years of trouble-free life.

He said the present condition of the main which carries feeder lines to some two dozen side streets is such that major repairs should be carried out without undue delay.

$10,000 PAID OUT
The city has paid out $10,000 in the past three years just to keep it operating, Mr. Upward said. Capital expenditures by the water board in the past decade amount to some $10,000 for this main.

The job will probably be done during September and the early part of October, the board was told.

Funds for repaving of Hillside have been placed in the public works estimate for this year.

Marine Garden Project Rejected by Oak Bay

Oak Bay council last night refused to approve construction of an underwater marine gardens at the Oak Bay Marina.

By an unexpected 4-2 vote, council voted against approval in principle to a five-year sublease already negotiated between the marina and Charles White, promoter of the exhibit which he said would be the largest of its kind in the world.

MAIN CONCERN

Council members opposing the project expressed concern mainly with the parking problem they feared it would cause.

Councillors J. D. Watts and W. J. J. Wade voted in favor of approving the project in principle. Opposed were councillors Allan Cox, Fred Robinson, Walter Dodsworth and Alex Hendry.

Reeve George Murdoch, whose tie-breaking vote was not required, favored the proposal.

Stunned by council's vote, Mr. White and Robert Wright of the marina said after the meeting that they hope council will reconsider its stand, and do so quickly. Construction of the exhibit is already under way, they said.

AREA NOT SUITABLE

Coun. Cox, most vocal of the opponents of the project, said in the meeting that he just did not think the area is suitable for providing sufficient parking for the exhibit plus other features of the marina.

He expressed fear that persons with boats moored at the marina, whose marina-area parking space was intended to accommodate, would not be able to park because of spaces being used up by customers of the marina exhibit.

During negotiations for the present agreement, signed by the municipality and marina backers about a year ago adequate parking was the marina company's biggest concern, he said.

BOOSTING SPACE

Now, he said, the marina was making proposals which would increase parking requirements before it was even known whether parking would be adequate for the marina facilities themselves.

Mr. Wright stressed that the marina exhibit's lease would run only five years.

He said the marina's directors were confident parking would prove adequate.

It did not, those who stood to lose most were, first, Charles White who would lose customers and, second, the marina which would lose customers who pay for wharings, he said.

Mr. White said at the meeting that council would do a great service to the Greater Victoria area by approving the project. As well as being a tourist attraction, it would be of great scientific benefit for studying marine life, he said.

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White said space for 150 cars will be provided on the lot when work now in progress is completed, and space for 225 would be provided by filling a further area Oak Bay has already asked the B.C. government to lease.

Charles White said at the meeting that council would do a great service to the Greater Victoria area by approving the project. As well as being a tourist attraction, it would be of great scientific benefit for studying marine life, he said.

New Title Given To Chancellor

ORDAINED IN 1889

Monsignor O'Connell, as he will now be known, was ordained by the late Bishop James Hill at St. Andrew's Cathedral on June 4, 1889.

He served in various capacities within the diocese until March 19, 1962, when, on the death of Bishop Hill, he was appointed administrator of the diocese until the arrival of Bishop De Roo.

Topaz Park Shrinks —And So Do Plans

Cold water was dashed yesterday on the hopes that Topaz Park can be developed in the near future as an enclosed park for major sports events.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said inroads made by the section of Blanshard Street extension just completed have left the west playing field too small for such a project.

In order to make an enclosed park in this location, city parks committee was told, it would be necessary to purchase privately owned property to the north, formerly used as a brickyard.

GETTING FILL
The property in question, which forms a natural amphitheatre, is in the process of change as fill from the nearby Mayfair shopping centre development is placed on it.

Mr. Warren said there are advantages to this location for an enclosed park because it is sheltered from the southwest winds and therefore warmer, particularly in the evening.

DEADVANTAGE
But the administrator added that it would still not allow separation of baseball from other field sports, one of the major disadvantages of the present setup at Royal Athletic Park.

The proposed $330,000 redevelopment scheme for Royal Athletic Park would eliminate this problem by providing a 500-seat grandstand behind the plate of a new baseball diamond and a new concrete grandstand seating 1,728 for a relocated soccer field and grass track for athletics.

Mr. Warren told the committee he felt there should be no move from Royal Athletic Park in Topaz, where costs of providing comparable facilities would be considerably higher.

He added, however, council agreed in 1957, when drains were laid, to complete the lower field at Topaz Park.

WATER SUPPLY
The committee recommended immediate spending of $340 on extension of the present water supply and maintenance of the field for this summer, when it will be used by junior ball teams.

In the fall, Mr. Warren said, $18,532 should be spent on completion of the field to the accepted standards.

He said the lower field, measuring 400 by 500 feet before part was taken for the new roadway, was now only large enough for development of one junior baseball field and "probably one junior soccer field."

The upper playing area, completed some time ago, consists of one standard soccer field.

Named Fellows
Two Victoria doctors have been made fellows of the American College of Physicians, it was learned Tuesday.

Dr. J. M. Sinclair, of 558 Monterey, and Dr. L. N. Roberts, 1730 Richmond, were awarded their fellowships during a recent visit to Denver, Colo.

Master Plan Advocated On Civic Pay

By IAN STREET

Greater Victoria municipalities must work together to establish "reasonable area wage rates and working conditions," according to a report released at city hall yesterday.

Failure to do so said Edwin E. Pearman, appointed spokesman for Victoria in current wage negotiations, means that local municipalities "will continue to be faced with costs and conditions completely unrelated to the economy of this particular area."

His report was made public by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

CITES SAANICH FACT

It noted that a settlement made by Saanich with respect to four weeks' annual vacation was reflected in findings of a binding conciliation board in settlement of Victoria firemen's contract demands.

Mr. Pearman said: "It is my opinion that this sort of isolated action should be completely eliminated for the benefit of all municipalities comprising this area."

"What happened this year merely points up what has been happening over the years," he added.

"I am completely at a loss to understand the hostility or unwillingness of each of the four municipalities to sit down and work out and adhere to a businesslike (plan) for the conduct of negotiations on a basis that is both fair to the employee and taxpayer."

Mr. Pearman said, "It seems completely beyond belief, but nevertheless it is a fact" that Victoria pays its police and firemen a higher wage rate than any other city in Canada except Vancouver.

He said the mainland city and adjacent municipalities pay $8 a month more than Victoria, where police and firemen get a basic wage of $488 a month.

BIG DIFFERENTIAL

By comparison, Mr. Pearman said, union members in many branches of industry face a differential of $30 to $40 a month between wage rates in Vancouver and Victoria.

The report said the conciliation boards "once again" followed a Vancouver decision which was based on circumstances peculiar to that area.

Mr. Pearman added: "I venture to express an opinion that Vancouver is entirely out of line with the rest of Canada, but to date the thinking seems to be that the rest of Canada is entirely out of step with Vancouver."

Since a Vancouver conciliation board has awarded a progressive reduction in duty hours for firemen from 48 to 42 hours a week, Mr. Pearman warned, "You may be assured that Victoria will (again) be faced with the same request a year hence."

REQUEST REJECTED

A request by Victoria firemen for a 42-hour week was rejected by a local conciliation board a few days ago.

He added: "It is only fair to add that many eastern Canadian cities have gone to a 40-hour week, but Victoria and Vancouver have the highest wage and now wish to have as well the shortest week."

Anti-Polio Campaign Scheduled

Some 4,000 parents of five and six-year-old children will soon receive letters urging them to have the youngsters immunized against polio.

The children are those who will enter school for the first time in September in the southern Vancouver Island area. The letters will be sent out by the Metropolitan Health Board.

Polio immunization is available all-year-round, senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said last night. The mail campaign is to emphasize to parents the need for immunization.

Artillery Band Plans Concerts

The 30-piece brass and reed band of the Fifth Independent Medium Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery will entertain at Matsen Lodge at 7:15 p.m. Friday under the direction of Lieut. Max Chalk.

Lieut. Chalk said a band concert had also been arranged for the afternoon of May 3 at Queen Alexandra Solarium.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's father is nearly 70. We moved into his rather large home three years ago when my mother-in-law died.

Several months ago he suffered a stroke. His recovery has been very good and he now has the use of all his faculties. The only thing that is troublesome is that his right side is partially paralyzed and it is difficult for him to eat properly. He spills food on the tablecloth, on himself, and sometimes on the floor.

Our children are 7, 9, and 10, and we try to teach them good table manners. When they see their grandfather slopping all over, it's a problem to make them to the mark.

I have suggested that we feed Grandpa in his room. My husband won't hear of it. Mealtime should be a pleasant family affair and it can't be pleasant with the old man at the table. I hope you will agree with me because my husband and I have been arguing about it for weeks and I need help.—BATTLE FATIGUE.

Dear Battle: Grandpa should not be isolated from the family. It would be cruel to feed him in his room.

More important than a clean tablecloth and meticulous manners is compassion for people who are old and weak. Explain to your children why grandpa spills things. Encourage them to help him and to be kind and considerate.

This experience could be an important lesson for your children and help them to be better human beings.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that some people think just because you live next door to a family you know their every move and are perfectly willing to act as messenger boy, check-room attendant, or anything they want?

It happened again today. A woman banged on my neighbor's door for 10 minutes. It sounded like a herd of elephants. Then she came over and handed me a package. She didn't ask me, she told me to

Miss Lila Wong, now Mrs. Derek Collier, formerly of Nanaimo, recently visited her home town with Michael, her four-year-old son. Miss Wong is a well-known violinist in Britain and continental Europe. She was a former pupil of Maurice Krumpholtz, recently retired conductor of the Nanaimo Symphony. Miss Wong is now professor of the Royal College of Music, London, England. California Honeymoon Follows Wedding Here

A honeymoon to California followed the recent marriage of Darlene Marton Cuff and Norman Jacob Andersen. Rev.

Robert D. Calder officiated at the choral service in Central Baptist Church. Miss Phyllis Hick was organist and Miss Margaret McKee, soloist. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cuff, Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. Ange Andersen, Deroche, B.C., are parents of the couple.

The attractive dark-haired bride chose an exquisite gown of white peau de fra, topped with nylon organza. Swiss applique accented the short sleeves and bouffant skirt. Her short illusion net veil was held by a coronet of crystals. She carried pink ethereal carnations, pink rapture and princess roses with camellia leaves.

Maid of honor, Miss Marlene Patterson, was in a dress of turquoise Swiss embroidered nylon over taffeta. Her bridesmaid was on tone and she carried pink carnations and marguerites.

Bridesmaids, Miss Esther Stevens, Miss Marilyn Stansby and Miss Louise Pass were identical dresses in blue pink and carried touting carnations and marguerites.

Mr. Howard Andersen was best man for his brother and Mr. Norman Pass, Mr. Robert Harma and the groom's brothers, Fred and Kenneth Andersen, ushered guests.

The Wallace Room of Holyrood House was the scene of the reception. The wedding cake was baked by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Pass. Mr. Percy Voss was the toast.

The bride changed to a classic suit of white poodle cloth, with turquoise lapel and black patent accessories. Following the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Andersen will make their home in Deroche.

Diana Lucas Bride Of George D. Coles

Miss Diana Margaret Lucas chose a full skirted floor-length gown of nylon net and lace over Duchess satin when she exchanged vows with George Duncan Coles in a recent ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Lace bodice, embroidered with iridescent sequins, was styled with asbina neckline and long sleeves. A train of seed pearls and sequins held a veil edged with lace. Yellow Johanna Hill roses, hyacinths and trailing ivy were in her bouquet. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

were at the altar and guest pews were marked with lily of the valley.

Rev. J. L. M. McLellan heard the marriage vows and wedding music was played by organist C. C. Warren.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lucas of Powell River and Mr. and Mrs. John Coles, 1248 Dallas Road.

Glassco Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Extensive management reorganization is needed to obtain efficiency and economy in the operations of the publicly-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Glusko royal commission on government organization said today.

"For this and other reasons, its management and form of organization have proved unequal to the task of ensuring the military conduct of operations in the face of the pressures brought about by rapid expansion."

The commission, which does

INCOHERENCE

The commission attributes what it terms "incoherence" of the CBC organization to failure to analyze complex CBC activities and to provide for their coordination on "tried and established principles."

It advocates greater decentralization, higher salaries for top CBC executives, increased responsibility for a carefully chosen, qualified board of directors, early emancipation of the CBC's commercial policy, a definite pattern of financing for the corporation, and policy direction from the government.

The commission also notes that, particularly in the light of the emergence of a competitive private television network, the possible conflict between the powers of the Board of Broadcast Governors and the statutory terms of reference of the

Northern Affairs Need Revamping

OTTAWA (CP)—Measures to give the department of northern affairs and national resources wider control over federal activity in the far north were recommended Tuesday by the Glendon royal commission.

Fourth volume of the commission's report on government services devotes a 9,000-word section to various federal operations in the north and concludes that the northern affairs department could be strengthened to end costly duplication or overlapping in some fields.

Main proposal is that the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship and immigration department be pulled out of northern work to leave northern affairs in control of both Indian and Eskimo programs.

The communist said it can see no reason for separating the two native races in matters of federal administration, arguing that "the problems presented by the two races in the north are indistinguishable."

WIDER POWER
It says local administrators should be given wider powers, freed of tight central control from Ottawa, to deal with local ailments. "General regulations that may seem appropriate to federal administrators in southern Canada may be preposterous in, say, Tuktoyaktuk."

ONE SUPPLIER URGED

Other proposals are that northern affairs be put in charge of all federal purchasing and supply for the north and the operation of common warehousing facilities. The commission noted, as an example, that nine federal departments now maintain separate storage facilities at Fort Smith, N.W.T.

The department also should be given responsibility for Northern Transportation Company, the federal agency which is the common carrier on the Mackinac River system. This company now comes under the trade department as a subsidiary of Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited.

During the 1932-33 fiscal year the department's northern administration branch had 20 Olathe posts in the $18,000-plus salary range but only 18 positions of that salary scale in the northern territories.

OTTAWA (CP)—Two weary officers in the external affairs department don't speak French, the Glasgow royal commission in government organization said Tuesday.

It said 224 officers of the department have a reasonably good command of French but only 172 admit incompetence. Clearly this latter figure is too high," the commission said.

On the fourth volume of its report on government services, the report also recommended transfer of the operation of the passport office to the immigration department, hiring of more women as career officers and the splitting of diplomatic and administrative duties in external affairs, the commission said.

"It should be a condition of permanent appointment for external affairs that the holder be bilingual," the report said, "with sound working knowledge of the French and English languages . . .

"While this department has the best record of any in providing an appropriate balance of French- and non-French-speaking officers, the essential working language of the department is English and the culture in which the French-speaking

"How to develop himself technically and professionally in an unfamiliar, English-speaking milieu while yet retaining his French-Canadian roots and contributing to the department as a representative of the French-speaking culture remains a vital and urgent problem."

Stressing also a need for proficiency in the French language, the report said:

Gagliardi Power of Pulpit Only Influence

By TERRY HAMMOND

Highways Minister Gagliardi told the legislative round probe yesterday his only influence on a contractor who donated free labor to his Kamloops church was the power of the pulpit.

He said he is sure it was his Sunday appeals for help in building a Calvary Temple auditorium that prompted a Trans-Canada Highway contractor to pay the wages of two men who worked for the church for about six months.

During a full day in the witness box the minister categorically denied the allegations of Montana contractor Dick Holzworth and said he fully concurred in decisions made by his men in relation to the controversial Project 818—a 12.5-mile section of highway near Revelstoke.

His testimony brought to an end the parade of witnesses which has appeared before the legislative public accounts committee since it commenced its investigation on March 6.

Today members of the 13-member committee will hear a summation of evidence from Vancouver lawyer Angelo Brown, counsel for Mr. Gagliardi and the highways department, and possibly a further summation by committee counsel Lloyd McKenna.

After that comes the task of preparing a final report for the cabinet.

LAST PUBLIC ACT
Mr. Brown's summation will likely be the last public act of the committee until the report is released.

It will mark the end of an investigation involving more than 80 public sittings, 160 hours of testimony and with bitter inter-party wrangling, and a transcript running to 35 volumes and nearly 500,000 words.

The investigation was the government's answer to the Holzworth allegations tabled in the House Feb. 26 in affidavit sworn by Gordon Dowling (NDP—Burnaby).

TEMPERS FLARED
As they have done many times since the hearing began, tempers flared on several occasions yesterday but never more hotly than when Mr. Dowling shouted across the chamber that Mr. Gagliardi was "a liar."

He hurled the epithet when the minister testified that the Burnaby member, a lawyer, had told him in a legislative corridor that he was acting for Mr. Holzworth.

UNPARLIAMENTARY
Mr. Gagliardi demanded a retraction and Mr. Brown said the remark was unparliamentary.

Waldo Skilling (BC—Victoria) said Mr. Dowling, who is not a member of the committee, should be cited for contempt.

Mr. Dowling said he retracted the accusation, but insisted he had never discussed the matter with the minister. Chairman Irvine Currie (SC—Yale) took no action on Mr. Skilling's statement.

Mr. Gagliardi's account of work on Calvary Temple and his role in the church stemmed from earlier testimony that Bonanza Construction had mailed cheques covering the wages of two men to the minister's home in Kamloops.

FROM TIME SHEETS
A former Bonanza employee testified the cheques were made up from time sheets submitted by Anthony Gagliardi, the minister's brother, who stayed in the minister's home. He said he never saw either of the men on Project 818—the job for which Bonanza handled the payroll.

Mr. Gagliardi told the probe yesterday that Calvary Temple decided in 1958 to build an auditorium and, as it had done in the past, employed his brother as "boom carpenter" because his brother was a building contractor who could cover the crew with workmen's compensation.

Glassco No. 4: Forces' Overlapping Hit Put Civilians on Job

GET TOGETHER!

Sweeping Defence Overhaul

OTTAWA (CP)—The Glassco royal commission on government organization today recommended sweeping changes in administration of the defence department.

It did not go so far, however, as to recommend a single, one-uniform service.

NOT FAR ENOUGH?

The recommendations may not go far enough for a new Liberal government. Liberal Leader Pearson on Jan. 12 urged that "the three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated for maximum efficiency and economy."

The commission, in the fourth volume of its report on government services, said it is uneconomic for the armed forces to maintain separate organizations for accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation and general administration. Such common functions should be integrated.

HALF-STRENGTH

It said that about 80,000 physically fit military personnel, nearly half the strength of the armed forces, are engaged in support or non-combat activities.

Some $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing 16,000 civilians in jobs now performed by uniformed personnel.

NETWORK WASTEFUL

The commission noted an unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to develop an integrated teletype relay system under tri-service direction. The result had been development of "three wasteful and increasingly inadequate networks."

It blamed such occurrences on lack of executive authority by the chiefs of staff committee. The committee system—there are more than 200 standing tri-service committees—permitted "procrastination."

MUST BE UNANIMOUS
The commission said recommendations and decisions of the chiefs of staff committee must be unanimous and that in case of disagreement the chairman reports the conflict of views to the defence minister.

The commission recommended that the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee (now Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller), exercise "ministerial power of direction" over the armed forces within limits defined in executive session.

In Volume Four

Other steps advocated in the fourth volume of the Glassco royal commission report:

• CBC: Extensive management reorganization for efficiency and economy in operations; greater decentralization; a definite pattern of financing; policy direction from the government.

• Northern Affairs: Strengthening of the department to end costly duplication or overlapping; removal of Indian affairs branch of citizenship department to leave northern affairs in control of both Indian and Eskimo programs; wider powers for local administrators.

• External Affairs: Permanent appointments should have command of both English and French languages; more effective control over issuing of passports; hiring of more women as career officers; splitting of diplomatic and administrative duties in external affairs.

For complete details see Page 22.

Liberals Facing Report Decision

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the decisions a new Liberal cabinet will face in the next few months is what to do about the 1,000,000-word report by the Glassco royal commission on government organization, set up 2½ years ago to find ways to eliminate waste and economize on federal operations.

During the last Parliament and in his election campaign Liberal Leader Pearson gave no indication of how he and top Liberals look upon the main Glassco proposals—some of them involving drastic shake-ups in the federal machine.

WITHIN MONTH

The fourth volume of the commission's report was issued today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office. The final volume is expected within a month.

Last November Mr. Diefenbaker said his government was prepared to adopt most of the Glassco suggestions and said Trade Minister McCauley would direct the job.

TO HELP WORK

George Davidson, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration was shifted to Senator McCauley's office to help with the work and a staff of senior civil servants was recruited to set up the organization.

Some of the ideas for streamlining civil service job-training, reducing the red tape in financial management and simplifying

TWO CENTRAL GROUPS

Volume No. 2 urged creation of two new central organizations to handle all federal purchasing and property management, another radical departure from present practice.

Major item in the third volume was a plan to have the government withdraw from the operation of veterans' hospitals, now a $39,000,000 annual outlay, and gradually shift veterans into community hospitals.

STORM OF PROTEST

This aroused a storm of protest and a comment from Mr. Diefenbaker that the proposal would not be accepted.

Garibaldi Combed For Trio

VANCOUVER (CP)—A large ski-equipped search party combed the rugged, snow-covered wastes of Garibaldi Park Tuesday for three men missing since Friday.

The search started after a group of mountaineers told police that Lloyd Williams, 26, of nearby Richmond; Don Hoover and Heinz Rostek, both 21, of Vancouver, failed to meet them at Garibaldi Lake as planned.

The three, described as experienced and well equipped, had left Diamond Head chalet, 12 miles south of the lake, Friday morning.

SEARCH HAMPERED
The search was being hampered by overcast weather and deep, wet snow. Garibaldi Park is about 50 miles north of here.

The searchers are camping in the park in their progress across the glaciers north of the chalet.

Four Children Killed In Saskatchewan Fire

PUNNICHY, Sask. (CP)—Four children, three of them from one family, died early Tuesday in a blazing two-story frame house on the Gordon Indian reserve near this farming town 80 miles north of Regina.

The four who died in the fire were three sons of Mr.

Thresher Escort Skipper Cited for Messages Delay

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—A navy court has cited the skipper of a submarine escort vessel for apparent failure to advise higher authorities of the final messages from the submarine USS Thresher, lost with 129 men.

The court named—but did not charge—Lt. Cmdr. Stanley W. Hecker, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y., skipper of the Skylark which was accompanying the Thresher when she made her fatal test dive last Wednesday.

SUBJECT TO INQUIRY

Vice-Admiral Bernard L. Austin, president of the court of inquiry, recalled Hecker to his stand Tuesday and advised him:

"The court has concluded that your conduct as commanding officer of the USS Skylark, as revealed by evidence presented to the court, appears to be subject to inquiry."

"The evidence in question reflects that you failed to inform higher authority of all the information available to you pertinent to the circumstances attending the last transmission received by Skylark from the Thresher on April 16, 1963, as it was your duty to do, for an unreasonable length of time."

"The court wishes to emphasize that this apparent failure on your part cannot conceivably have contributed in any way to the loss of the USS Thresher and those on board.

"You are accordingly disciplined as a party before this court. Counsel for the court will inform you of your rights as such."

INFORMED OF MIST

Capt. Saul Katz, counsel for the court, informed Hecker that he has the right to obtain counsel, examine records of all evidence thus far, cross examine witnesses, and introduce witnesses and present a closing argument at the conclusion of the inquiry. He also said Hecker could challenge members of the court.

The court recessed to give Hecker time to get legal counsel. Earlier, two admirals said they have a theory as to what caused the loss of the Thresher but declined to make it public.

SECRET DATA?
Rear Admiral Lawson P. Ramage, deputy commander of the Atlantic fleet submarine force, testified before a court of inquiry Tuesday that his opinion is "not one I'd care to state in open session."

The naval inquiry court indicated Ramage's theory involved secret or confidential information and might be taken later in executive session.

Thompson Insists

Disagreement—But No Split

RED DEER (CP)—Social Credit leaders in western Canada, including national leader Robert Thompson, met behind closed doors here Tuesday night to discuss party strategy.

One of the topics at the meeting, coinciding with a gathering of eastern party supporters in Ottawa, was possible action against the six Social Credit members of Parliament who last week pledged support for a Liberal government.

Prior to the meeting here, Mr. Thompson said that the action by the six party members "demanded immediate action, coming as it did before the result of the armed services vote was announced."

NO ANNOUNCEMENTS

He indicated there would be no announcements out of either the meeting here or the meeting in Ottawa before Wednesday morning.

He said neither meeting could be termed a party caucus and that the Red Deer gathering was a strategy session to discuss party policy.

Edmonton with Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta. Most provincial cabinet ministers and senior party officials attended the morning discussions.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Quebec wing of the Social Credit party met for more than five hours without a break Tuesday to thrash out differences over the party's position in the next Parliament.

The marathon caucus resumed Tuesday night after a supper break and was to continue this morning. Gilles Giguere, member for Lapointe, said he will issue a written statement on the outcome of Quebec.

the discussions about noon today.

A party official said caucuses are a good place to wash dirty linen. There was no sense in doing it in public, he added. He did not elaborate.

Bert Leboe, member for Carleton Place in Ontario, said the only Western Social Credit MP at the caucus, blamed Liberal agents for a statement pledging support for the incoming Liberal government signed by six Social Credit MPs from

Following the meeting with Mr. Manning the Social Credit leader said the fact that western leaders were meeting in Red Deer while eastern supporters gathered in Ottawa did not mean there was a split in the party.

It was simply a matter of convenience, he explained. "It's costly to have an executive meeting in Ottawa."

NO DIVERSION

Mr. Thompson then admitted that there may be differences of opinion among party members. "There may be some disagreement within the party but no division," he told reporters.

He said there was another factor in his decision not to attend the Ottawa meeting.

"I didn't want to conduct the investigation," he said, referring to the action of the six Quebec members whose names appeared on a statement announcing support of a Liberal government. He said it was purely a local affair.

Fast Work Halts Cowichan Fire

DUNCAN — Quick response by the North Cowichan Fire Department Tuesday morning prevented a gasoline fire from spreading at the home of Mrs. William Olson on Cowichan Lake Road.

The fire started in the basement and the only extensive damage was caused by smoke in the house interior.

Mrs. Olson, her four children and the pet dog, Bounce, escaped injury.

The blaze is believed to have been started by one of the Olson children who mistook a pool of gasoline for water. The youngster dipped a piece of paper in the fluid and threw it into the furnace.

The blaze spread to a partly filled gasoline can but the container did not explode.

NANAIMO — A deputy magistrate has been appointed in Nanaimo.

Nanaimo lawyer Ralph

Hutchison took his post on the bench Tuesday while Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts is on holiday in California. Announcement of Mr. Hutchison's appointment came from the attorney-general's department in Victoria after a short delay which left the Nanaimo court without a magistrate.

DUNCAN — The Valley Garden Club is completing preparations for the annual spring garden show at the hall of the Royal Canadian Legion, Cowichan Branch here this Saturday, starting at 2 p.m.

At the recent club meeting Mrs. C. A. Green demonstrated how to choose and stage dahlias for a flower show including bloom selection, cutting, protection and bloom preparing. Mrs. R. H. M. Shaw spoke on the culture of polyanthus, primrose and cowslips and Mrs. T. V. Sandys-Yusack on auriculas.

NANAIMO — A miniature model of the Bastion was presented to members of the Nanaimo Canadian League Youth Organization by Mayor Pete Moffat Tuesday before the group left to attend a Sunday teen-town convention at Port Alberni.

Around The Island

The Nanaimo young people had asked the mayor for something they could take along to the convention in symbolizing Nanaimo.

A delegation of 300 teenagers from the mainland missed the boat from Hornsby Bay on their way to the convention Tuesday morning. They also missed the reception committee waiting in Nanaimo.

DUNCAN — Paul Baptiste Antoine died at the King's Daughters' Hospital here April 14, aged 63 years.

He was born at Duncan in 1890 and had been a resident here all his life. A logger by trade, he worked for different companies in this district.

Requiem mass will be sung at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Tsofion, Thursday at 10 a.m., followed by interment in St. Ann's cemetery.

Duncan Hunter Trial

Parksville Rider Best

DUNCAN — Outstanding rider and horse at Monday's Open Hunter Trial at the Duncan farm was Miss Gail Dunlop on Pharoa from the Parksville Riding Centre. Second place was taken by a Victoria girl, Karen Burdon, on Kelly's Dream.

Miss Dunlop also won the quarter-mile steeple chase and came second at the hunters' pair trial together with Miss Sharon Parsley on Toffee.

First in this class were Mrs. J. N. Joyce on Coke and Miss Douss on Two Spot. In the green hunter trial first was Rob Roy with Mrs. C. J. G. MacKenzie, and her husband, Dr. MacKenzie, was second on Jack of Diamonds. Third place was taken by Coke with Mrs. Joyce.

Results in the child's working hunter were: 1. Kokomo with Rodney Mitchell; 2. Cherries with Suzanne Bradford; 3. Quicksilver with Jennifer Horne.

The Monday's hunter trials here were the first of the 1963 season and were sponsored by the Cowichan District Riding Club. Spokesman Miss H. F. Ren said:

"The largest entry in the hunter trials were to the child's working hunter, which looks very promising for the future."

Monday's competition chairman was Miss Mary Miller with Miss Ren and Alan Larkin as judges. Assisting were E. P. Robertson, Ron Graham, W. A. King and Mrs. G. B. Barnes. Duncan veterinarian Dr. David Lotz was announcer. Judge in the western races was Bob Batty, assisted by Miss Elaine Blackdy.

Sports Groups May Amalgamate

PORT ALBERNI — The possibility of amalgamating a number of local sports groups was discussed at a preliminary meeting in Barclay Hotel attended by representatives of nine organizations.

Alberni District Fish and Game Association recently acquired a lease of 132 acres of land on Stamp River and it is suggested that the facilities would be made available to all participating in an amalgamated group. MacMillan, Blodel and Powell River Ltd. has donated bunkhouse to be moved to the property.

Represented at the first meeting were the Fish and Game Association, Port Sharpshooters, Port Gun Club, Fly Fishing Club, Archery Club, Western Handgun Club, AV Club, the Search and Rescue Squad and the valley's Skin Divers Club.

A further meeting is called for Thursday, April 25 at the Barclay Hotel.

Varsity Students' Job Chances Good

Employment possibilities for Victoria University students over the summer vacation break are bright.

"An estimate based on last year's results indicates that at least 300 students have summer jobs assured ... in addition to those who have arranged their own jobs," George Bevis, manager of Victoria office of the National Employment Service, said last night.

"An accurate figure will not be possible until the employers and students report their hiring to the campus office during the summer.

"In general, the work situation is reasonably good but both the provincial and federal governments' austerity programs have reduced the number of jobs in this field."

The NES office on the Lansdowne campus of the university has arranged casual and part-time jobs through the school year in addition to arranging summer employment. "So far this school year—September to the end of March—the office has arranged work for 680 students, 540 of these were ... part-time which provides students with extra money during the school period.

"The other 120 are the start of the placements being arranged for the coming summer."

Mr. Bevis said some 45 national firms have interviewed students through the campus office, together with representatives from 10 different school districts.

Mayor Maffeo:

Ferry Tieups Offset Drive for Tourists

NANAIMO — Mayor Pete Maffeo didn't know whether to laugh or cry Tuesday.

The mayor spent the weekend checking the long lines of waiting cars at the ferry wharf at Departure Bay. He saw the car lines packed to capacity and motorists waiting in four-hour stretches.

Tuesday afternoon he learned that the March-April edition of the B.C. Motorist contains four pages of copy and color photographs on Vancouver Island, including Nanaimo.

DELIGHT TEMPERED

The mayor expressed delight at the excellent publicity and then remembered the ferry situation.

"There is not much use in Vancouver Island making a drive for tourists unless we can get them to and from the island with less difficulty. This does not look to be the case judging from reports I have of weekend traffic jams on both sides of the strait," said the mayor.

EXTRA SAILING

Departure Bay terminal agent John Weather said Tuesday that Thursday was particularly busy and an extra sailing was run at 1 a.m. Friday to clear the backlog of traffic. The backlogs of traffic on both sides of Georgia Strait recently have resulted in plans for a meeting between Vancouver city officials and RCMP.

Mayor Maffeo said there is a definite need for extra service during peak periods such as the Easter weekend. Hourly service between Nanaimo and Vancouver is not scheduled until 1964.

Meanwhile local realtor Frank Ney plans to travel to Montreal to see a demonstration of the British Hovercraft there. The Hovercraft, which can carry 66 passengers, is reported capable of making the Nanaimo-Vancouver run in slightly more than half an hour.

Mayor Maffeo has expressed interest in the Hovercraft and said council would be interested in a demonstration of the craft here.

Princess of Vancouver

More Car Space for Ferry

Car-carrying capacity of the Princess of Vancouver will be increased from its present 120 cars to 170, a spokesman announced Tuesday.

Reconversion job, a rush to reduce service interruption to a minimum, will take place between April 20 and May 3.

The work will be handled by Yarrow, Ltd., in Victoria, where an official said 170 men, working on three shifts around the clock, would be employed. An extension of the vessel's annual overhaul, provision of the extra car space will remove one lounge amidships.

Preliminary work is already being done, and L. R. Smith, vice-president and general manager of Canadian Pacific's Pacific Region, said the conversion would ensure space for extra cars during peak periods when the lower deck is filled with trucks and trailers to and from Nanaimo.

Festival Plays Planned April 26

DUNCAN — At the recent meeting of the Duncan Little Theatre it was decided to hold a studio night of three one-act plays, April 26, at the Duncan Elementary Gymnasium.

The program will include the two plays being entered in the current Central Vancouver Island Drama Festival.

Hands Across the Sea and Girls Must Talk. Third production will be The Stranger, in which Joanna De Leeuw won the best actress award in the 1962 festival.

Very Powley is directing Chris Must Talk. The other two plays are being directed by Mrs. De Leeuw.

Although the studio night will wind up the season's public activities, the club will continue throughout the summer with play readings and theatre workshops. Inexperienced as well as experienced new members are welcome to join the group at any time.

Two additional positions were added to the executive committee, librarian and historian, with Mrs. De Leeuw and Peggy Smith in charge.

Of special interest in Nanaimo is his announcement that waiting room facilities would be constructed both there and in Vancouver to accommodate passengers, and should be ready about July 1. Ship modifications will also include a snack bar to augment present restaurant facilities aboard the Princess of Vancouver.

During the few days the ship is at Yarrow, an extra barge will be provided to handle freight cars, trucks and trailers.

Workmen at Yarrow are already busy on another annual redit job—that on OCGS Estimation of the department of transport.

Estimation moved into Yarrow Tuesday, and this yearly job will keep a number of men busy for about a month.

Hillside

Relining Of Main Proposed

Greater Victoria water board yesterday decided to spend an estimated $20,000 on relining of the 24-inch steel water main running under Hillside Avenue.

Because the main is an integral part of the city's distribution system, Victoria crews will handle a major share of the work. The actual relining of the pipe with concrete will likely be handled by an outside firm.

ANOTHER 30 YEARS

Commissioner R. A. Upward said the lining should give the main which has turned the "backbone of the city's water distribution system" another 30 years of trouble-free life.

He said the present condition of the main which carries feeder lines to some two dozen side streets is such that major repairs would be carried out without undue delay.

$10,000 PAID OUT

The city has paid out $10,000 in the past three years just to keep it operating. Mr. Upward said. Capital expenditures by the water board in the past decade amount to some $10,000 for this main.

The job will probably be done during September and the early part of October, the board was told.

TRAFFIC DIVERSION

Since it requires considerable excavation along Hillside, the commissioner said, the city will have to make arrangements for diversion of traffic and laying of temporary water lines to service buildings in the area while the main is out of commission.

Funds for repaving of Hillside have been placed in the public works estimates for this year.

Totem for Argentina

Five months more work will see this 71-foot totem pole ready for Buenos Aires. In the foreground is Henry Hunt, chief carver, with his son Tony in the background. The totem will be sent to Argentina where it will be erected in Plaza Canada in Buenos Aires. Canadian trees will be planted in the square to give it a forest background. Early in 1961 the city of Buenos Aires named one of its beautiful squares Plaza Canada in honor of this country.

Deep-Sea Sites

Island Areas For Industry

A group of 10 Vancouver Island areas are highlighted in a full-scale report on deep-sea sites available in British Columbia for industries.

Prepared by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, the report says the 10 island sites are "by no means the only potential deep-sea sites on the island."

SUGGESTIONS

"They should be regarded as suggestions to industry as some places to be looked at if a Vancouver Island location is desired."

The 41-page report consolidates information about existing and potential industrial areas suitable for industries requiring their own deep-sea wharves.

ON EAST COAST

The 10 island sites are all on the east coast. Running from south to north, they are: Whiskey Point near Mill Bay, Cowichan Bay, Crofton, Ladysmith, Nanaimo Harbor, Flax Point near Lantzville, Nanose Bay, Madrona Point, Deep Bay and Union Bay opposite Duncan Island.

Originally prepared for the hydro authority's own use, the report has attracted so much interest it has been made available to interested industries.

NO DISADVANTAGE

"For industries requiring large volumes of raw materials from eastern Canada or shipping large volumes of goods to eastern Canada, a Vancouver Island location may not be at a disadvantage freight-wise," the report says.

"An examination of 14 rail-way agreed charges, chosen at random, reveals that more than half of them have the same rates for Victoria as Vancouver."

RATES HIGHER

"The other half show freight rates averaging two or three per cent there for Victoria than Vancouver."

There is a good labor supply on Vancouver Island and in some classifications it may be better than Vancouver."

3,400 ACRES

The 10 island sites highlighted in the report represent more than 2,500 acres of land. Copies of the report, including 41 sketch maps, cost $2.50 each including tax. They are available from the hydro commission.

Anti-Polio Campaign Scheduled

Some 4,000 parents of five and six-year-old children will soon receive letters urging them to have the youngsters immunized against polio.

The children are those who will enter school for the first time in September in the southern Vancouver Island area. The letters will be sent out by the Metropolitan Health Board.

Polio immunization is available all-year-round, senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said last night. The mail campaign is to emphasize to parents the need for immunization.

Artillery Band Plans Concerts

The 30-piece brass and reed band of the Fifth Independent Medium Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery will entertain at Mason Lodge at 7:15 p.m. Friday under the direction of Lieut. Max Chalk.

Lieut. Chalk said a band concert had also been arranged for the afternoon of May 3 at Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Topaz Park Shrinks —And So Do Plans

Cold water was dashed yesterday on the hopes that Topaz Park can be developed in the near future as an enclosed park for major sports events.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said (inroads made by the section of Blanshard Street extension just completed have left the west playing field too small for such a project).

In order to make an enclosed park in this location, city parks committee was told, it would be necessary to purchase privately owned property to the north, formerly used as a brickyard.

GETTING FICKL The property in question, which forms a natural amphitheatre, is in the process of change as fill from the nearby Mayfair shopping centre is placed on it.

Mr. Warren said there are advantages to this location for an enclosed park because it is sheltered from the southwest winds and therefore warmer, particularly in the evening.

DISADVANTAGE But the administrator added that it would still not allow separation of baseball from other field sports, one of the major disadvantages of the present setup at Royal Athletic Park.

The proposed $330,000 development scheme for Royal Athletic Park would eliminate this problem by providing a 500-foot grandstand behind the plate of a new baseball diamond and a new concrete grandstand seating 1,720 for a relocated soccer field and grass track for athletics.

Mr. Warren told the committee he felt there should be no move from Royal Athletic Park to Topaz, where costs of providing comparable facilities would be considerably higher. He will make a further written report to council.

He added, however, council agreed in 1957, when drains were laid, to complete the lower field at Topaz Park.

WATER SUPPLY

The committee recommended immediate spending of $340 on extension of the present water supply and maintenance of the field for this summer, when it will be used by junior ball teams.

In the fall, Mr. Warren said, $15,522 should be spent on completion of the field to the accepted standards.

He said the lower field, measuring 400 by 500 feet before part was taken for the new roadway, was now only large enough for development of one junior baseball field and "probably one junior soccer field."

The upper playing area, completed some time ago, consists of one standard soccer field.

Named Fellows

Two Victoria doctors have been made fellows of the American College of Physicians, it was learned Tuesday.

Dr. J. M. Sinclair, of 555 Monterey, and Dr. L. N. Roberts, 1730 Richmond, were awarded their fellowships during a recent visit to Denver, Colo.

Dollar Cards Issued

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is again helping merchants to remind U.S. tourists that their dollar is worth eight cents more than the Canadian one.

For the second year, the chamber has had cards printed and is distributing them to merchants for display in their store windows.

Power of Pulpit Only Influence

By TERRY HAMMOND

Highways Minister Gagliardi told the legislative roads probe yesterday his only influence on a contractor who donated free labor to his Kamloops church was the power of the pulpit.

He said he is sure it was his Sunday appeals for help in building a Calvary Temple auditorium that prompted a TransCanada Highway contractor to pay the wages of two men who worked for the church for about six months.

BACKED MEN

During a full day in the witness box the minister categorically denied the allegations of Montana contractor Dick Holzworth and said he fully concurred in decisions made by his men in relation to controversial Project 819—a 12.8-mile section of highway near Revelstoke.

His testimony brought to an end the parade of witnesses which has appeared before the legislative public accounts committee since it commenced its investigation on March 6.

Today members of the 13-member committee will hear a summation of evidence from Vancouver lawyer Angelo Branca, counsel for Mr. Gagliardi and the highways department, and possibly a further summation by committee counsel Lloyd McKenna.

After that comes the task of preparing a final report for the cabinet.

LAST PUBLIC ACT

Mr. Branca's summation will likely be the last public act of the committee until the report is released.

It will mark the end of an investigation involving more than 60 public sittings, 160 hours of testimony mixed with bitter inter-party wrangling, and a transcript running to 35 volumes and nearly 500,000 words.

The investigation was the government's answer to the Holzworth allegations tabled in the House Feb. 26 in affidavit form by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby.)

TEMPERS FLARED

As they have done many times since the hearing began, tempers flared on several occasions yesterday but never more hotly than when Mr. Dowding shouted across the chamber that Mr. Gagliardi was "a liar."

He hurled the epithet when the minister testified that the Burnaby member, a lawyer, had told him in a legislative corridor that he was acting for Mr. Holzworth.

UNPARLIAMENTARY

Mr. Gagliardi demanded a retraction and Mr. Branca said the remark was unparliamentary.

Waldo Skilling (SC—Victoria) said Mr. Dowding, who is not a member of the committee, should be cited for contempt.

Mr. Dowding said he retracted the accusation, but insisted he had never discussed the matter with the minister.

Chairman Irvine Corbett (SC—Yale) took no action on Mr. Skilling's statement.

Mr. Gagliardi's account of work on Calvary Temple and his role in the church stemmed from earlier testimony that Bonanza Construction had mailed cheques covering the wages of two men to the minister's home in Kamloops.

FROM TIME SHEETS

A former Bonanza employee testified the cheques were made up from time sheets submitted by Anthony Gagliardi, the minister's brother, who stayed in the minister's home. He said he never saw either of the men on Project 819—the job for which Bonanza handled the payroll.

Mr. Gagliardi told the probe yesterday that Calvary Temple decided in 1958 to build an auditorium and, as it had done in the past, employed his brother as "boss carpenter" because his brother was a building contractor who could cover the crew with workmen's compensation.

SERVICES WASTE HIT BY REPORT

Sweeping Defence Overhaul

OTTAWA (CP)—The Glasco royal commission on government organization today recommended sweeping changes in administration of the defence department.

It did not go as far, however, as to recommend a single, one-uniform service.

The recommendations may not go far enough for a new Liberal government. Liberal Leader Pearson on Jan. 12 urged that "the three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated for maximum efficiency and economy."

The commission, in the fourth volume of its report on government services, said it is uneconomic for the armed forces to maintain separate organizations for accounting, supply, construction, engineering, telecommunications, transportation and general administration. Such common functions should be integrated.

MAINTENANCE

It said that about 60,000 physically fit military personnel, nearly half the strength of the armed forces, are engaged in support or non-combat activities.

Some $20,000,000 a year could be saved by employing 16,000 civilians in jobs now performed by uniformed personnel.

NETWORKS 'WASTEFUL'

The commission noted an unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to develop an integrated teletype relay system under tri-service direction. The result had been development of "three wasteful and increasingly inadequate networks."

It blamed such occurrences on lack of executive authority by the chiefs of staff committee. The committee system—there are more than 200 standing tri-service committees—permitted "procrastination."

MUST BE UNANIMOUS

The commission said recommendations and decisions of the chiefs of staff committee must be unanimous and that in case of disagreement the chairman reports the conflicting views to the defence minister.

The commission recommended that the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee (now Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller), exercise "ministerial power of direction" over the armed forces within limits of financial management and supply.

In Volume Four

Other steps advocated in the fourth volume of the Glasco royal commission report:

• CBC: Extensive management reorganization for efficiency and economy in operations; greater decentralization; a definite pattern of financing; policy direction from the government.

• Northern Affairs: Strengthening of the department to end costly duplication or overlapping; removal of Indian affairs branch of citizenship department to leave northern affairs in control of both Indian and Eskimo programs; wider powers for local administrators.

• External Affairs: Permanent appointments should have command of both English and French languages; more effective control over issuing of passports; hiring of more women as career officers; splitting of diplomatic and administrative duties in external affairs.

For complete details see Page 22.

Liberals Facing Report Decision

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the decisions a new Liberal cabinet will face in the next few months is what to do about the 1,000-word report by the Glasco royal commission on government organization, set up 2½ years ago to find ways to eliminate waste and economize on federal operations.

During the last Parliament and in his election campaign Liberal Leader Pearson gave no indication of how he and top Liberals look upon the main Glasco proposals—some of them involving drastic shake-ups in the federal machine.

WITHIN MONTHS

The fourth volume of the commission's report was issued today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office. The final volume is expected within a month.

Last November Mr. Diefenbaker said his government was prepared to adopt most of the Glasco suggestions and said Trade Minister McCutcheon would direct the job.

TO HELP WORK

George Davidson, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration, was shifted to Senator McCutcheon's office to help with the work and a staff of senior civil servants was recruited to set up the organization.

Some of the ideas for streamlining civil service job-training, reducing the red tape in financial management and simplifying

TWO CENTRAL GROUPS

Volume No. 2 urged creation of two new central organizations to handle all federal purchasing and property management, another radical departure from present practice.

Major item in the third volume was a plan to have the government withdraw from the operation of veterans' hospitals, now a $50,000,000 annual outlay, and gradually shift veterans into community hospitals.

STORM OF PROTEST

This aroused a storm of protest and a comment from Mr. Diefenbaker that the proposal would not be accepted.

Volume No. 4 today advocates a reorganization of the CBC's management with more government direction, a ticklish political issue.

Garibaldi Combed For Trio

VANCOUVER (CP)—A large ski-equipped search party combed the rugged, snow-covered wastes of Garibaldi Park Tuesday for three men missing since Friday.

The search started after a group of mountaineers told police that Lloyd Williams, 26, of nearby Richmond; Don Hoover and Heinz Rostek, both 22, of Vancouver, failed to meet them at Garibaldi Lake as planned.

The three, described as experienced and well equipped, had left Diamond Head chalet, 12 miles south of the lake, Friday morning.

The search was being hampered by overcast weather and deep, wet snow. Garibaldi Park is about 50 miles north of here.

The searchers are camping in the park in their progress across the glaciers north of the chalet.

Five members of the Seattle mountaineers' organization, at the Chalet Tivoli, Saturday weekend, stayed on in the search.

Thresher Escort Skipper Cited for Messages Delay

PORTSMOUTH, N.B. (AP)—A navy court has cited the skipper of a submarine escort vessel for apparent failure to advise higher authorities of the final messages from the submarine USS Thresher, lost with 129 men.

The court named—but did not charge—Lt. Cmdr. Stanley W. Hecker, 36, of Brooklyn, N.Y., skipper of the Skylark which was accompanying the Thresher when she made her final last dive last Wednesday.

SUBJECT TO INQUIRY

Vice-Admiral Bernard L. Austin, president of the court of inquiry, recalled Hecker to the stand Tuesday and advised him:

"The court has concluded that your conduct as commanding officer of the USS Skylark, as revealed by evidence presented to the court, appears to be subject to inquiry."

"The evidence in question reflects that you failed to inform higher authority of all the information available to you pertinent to the circumstances attending the last transmissions received by Skylark from the Thresher on April 18, 1963, as it was your duty to do, for an unreasonable length of time."

"The court wishes to emphasize that this apparent failure on your part cannot conceivably have contributed in any way to the loss of the USS Thresher and those on board.

"You are accordingly designated as a party before this court. Counsel for the court will inform you of your rights as such."

INFORMED OF RIGHT

Capt. Saul Katz, counsel for the court, informed Hecker that he has the right to obtain counsel, examine records of all evidence thus far, cross examine witnesses, can introduce witnesses and can present a closing argument at the conclusion of the inquiry. He also said Hecker could challenge members of the court.

The court recessed to give Hecker time to get legal counsel. Earlier, two admirals said they have a theory on what caused the loss of the Thresher but declined to make it public.

SECRET DATA?

Rear Admiral Lawson P. Ramage, deputy commander of the Atlantic Fleet submarine force, testified before a court of inquiry Tuesday that his opinion is "not one I'd care to state in open session."

The naval inquiry court indicated Ramage's theory involved secret or confidential information and might be taken later in executive session.

Thompson Insists

Disagreement—But No Split

RED DEER (CP)—Social Credit leaders in western Canada, including national leader Robert Thompson, met behind closed doors here Tuesday night to discuss party strategy.

One of the topics at the meeting, coinciding with a gathering of eastern party supporters in Ottawa, was possible action against the six Social Credit members of Parliament who last week pledged support for a Liberal government.

Prior to the meeting here, Mr. Thompson said that the action by the six party members "demanded immediate action, coming as it did before the result of the armed services vote was announced."

He indicated there would be no announcements out of either the meeting here or the meeting in Ottawa before Wednesday morning.

He said neither meeting could be termed a party caucus and that the Red Deer gathering was a strategy session to discuss party policy.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Thompson conferred for 2½ hours in Edmonton with Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta. Most provincial cabinet ministers and senior party officials attended the morning discussions.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Quebec wing of the Social Credit party met for more than five hours without a break Tuesday to thrash out differences over the party's position in the next Parliament.

The marathon caucus resumed Tuesday night after a supper break and was to continue this morning. Gilles Goggin, member for Lapointe, said he will issue a written statement on the outcome of the discussions about noon today.

A party official said caucuses are a good place to wash dirty linen. There was no sense in doing it in public, he added. He did not elaborate.

Bert Leboe, member for Carleton Place in British Columbia and the only Western Social Credit MP at the caucus, blamed Liberal agents for a statement pledging support for the impending Liberal government signed by six Social Credit MPs from Quebec.

Following the meeting with Mr. Manning the Social Credit leader said the fact that western leaders were meeting in Red Deer while eastern supporters gathered in Ottawa did not mean there was a split in the party.

"It was simply a matter of economics," he explained. "It's costly to have an executive meeting in Ottawa."

NO DIVISION

Mr. Thompson then admitted that there may be differences of opinion among party members. "There may be some disagreement within the party but no division," he told reporters.

He said there was another factor in his decision not to attend the Ottawa meeting.

"I didn't want to conduct the investigation," he said, referring to the action of the six Quebec members whose names appeared on a statement announcing support of a Liberal government. He said it was purely a local affair.
